THE REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN.

Greeley on His Own Share in the Democratic Intrigue.

Position of the Soldiers on the National Question.

The Way Greeley Campaign Clubs are Manufactured.

Neither Tammany nor the Rebels to be Cheated.

Further Additions to the List of Democratic Bolters.

Mr. Greeley and His Subscribers.

The reporter whom we sent to Chappaqua last Saturday is prepared to prove the accuracy of his account of Mr. Greeley's disgusting remarks concerning the Indians. The reporter adds the following statement in relation to another subject:

"Mr. Greeley, in conversation with Ex-Gov. Ashley, at Chappaqua, last Saturday, made a statement which I omitted to incorporate in my report. While referring to the number of subscribers dissatisfied with the course of the Tribune, and who have sent to that paper to have their money refunded, claiming that it was obtained under false pretenses, Mr. Greeley said that so soon, last Fall, as he became aware of the course of the Democratic Party with reference to his nomination, he attended to the issue of the prospects of the Tribune personally, and purposely made it such that the subscribers could not accuse him of lack of faith."

Who will say after this that Mr. Greeley was not intriguing for the Presidential nomination with the Democrats in the Fall of last year?

At the Greeley Headquarters.

The "Odds and Ends" party were at work as usual, at the Gleaham Hotel, yesterday, trying to keep up appearances. A frowning portrait of B. Gratz Brown, the homeliest man in the country, which once hung upon the walls, has been recently removed. The appearance of the rooms has since been a little but more cheerful.

Yesterday Gen. Frank P. Blair and Judge Jasper W. Johnson visited Brady to have their photographs taken. They then sat for the artist of the Day's Doings, who caricatured them for Leslie's illustrated paper.

Head quarters may be supplied with the following queer political hacks during the day:

Judge Shandley, Minturn Tompkins, New-York; Hon. H. G. Swords, Louisiana; Col. William Johnson, of Augusta and Charlotte Railroad, North Carolina; Col. Frank E. Williams, John Shirley Ward, Nashville, Tennessee; Col. J. W. Lathes was tendered J. Meany, Greeley orator, Herman D. Walsridge, New-York; Durante de Ponte, Louisiana. The "Liberals" are getting frightened about the result in North Carolina, and are getting up stories about the colonizing of negro Grant voters in Wilmington, N. C.

How the Soldiers Stand.

The brave soldiers of the great West stand shoulder to shoulder with their noble comrades of the East in support of their old and successful commander. From all sections comes intelligence similar to this, which we take from the Manchester (Iowa) Press of Friday last: "Some of the Greeleyites having claimed that a majority of the soldiers in this town were for their candidate, a couple of gentlemen made a careful census. The result—without reference to political opinion heretofore—shows: For Greeley, 19; for Grant, 62. They vote as they bought."

At the Republican Head-quarters Yesterday.

Col. L. E. Dudley, Secretary of the Veterans' National Committee, was on guard, yesterday, at the head-quarters of the Republican National Committee, Fifth-avenue Hotel. Hon. W. E. Chandler, Secretary of the Committee, is, owing to pressing campaign engagements, unavoidably absent from the City. Although expected at head-quarters yesterday, he will not be in town until Monday next. He is now in Washington. Among those who called during the day were ex-Gov. E. D. Morgan, Hon. Wm. Orton and Mr. Platt of Virginia, Major Genaee H. Stevens, of the Grant Republican National Committee, called in while our reporter was present. He engaged in a wordy argument with a gentleman, relative to the prospects of Greeley's election. In the course of the argument, Stevens said that he was desirous of finding somebody who would bet $20,000 on Grant against Greeley. The gentleman to whom he was talking said that he would gladly accommodate him. Cards were exchanged on the spot, and a meeting arranged at the Gleaham Hotel. Owing to the immense number of letters received every day it will be necessary to engage the services of an additional stenographer to write answers to them. The majority of letters contain assurances of the cheering prospects of Grant and Wilson in all quarters of the country.

How Greeley Campaign Clubs are Manufactured.

The Tribune, in its issue of the 23d inst., published an account of a Greeley and Brown Club, supposed to be organized in Cambridge, N. Y., and giving a full list of the officers elected on the occasion. A correspondent in that place informs us that had it not been for this notice in the Tribune, the Cambridge people would have been in utter ignorance that they had a Greeley club in their midst. The facts in the case, says our correspondent, are these: On Saturday, the 13th inst., a man, who said his name was Tedwell, arrived in the village from Brooklyn, N. Y., with a commission, as he announced, to start Greeley and Brown clubs. Exactly three persons met him the same evening, in a shoe-store in the village, and the result of that meeting appears in the supposed formation of a Greeley and Brown club, with a full list of officers and an executive committee of fifteen. "This is pretty tall misrepresentation," adds our informant, and continued, "In our village we get two Democrats to vote for Grant for every one we lose on Greeley."

Tammany Nor the Rebels Are to be Cheated.

The precise proof of Greeley's early bargaining with the Democrats was hardly deemed necessary by the Providence Journal. And it says: "For our own part, while conceding the relevancy and force of these disclosures, they do not add very great weight to the evidence upon the conduct of Greeley, Blair and Hoffman presents as to the understanding between the New-York leaders and the Southern rebels and Horace Greeley. It is as plain upon the face of it as anything can well be that, bitten by the insanity of insatiable ambition, Mr. Greeley has thrown himself into the hands, and is ready to be controlled by the men who in State and national politics have for the last ten years wrought such measures, and what might have been such tremendous ruin."

A Prominent California Democrat for Grant.

Gen. A. M. Winn, of California, who has been a strong advocate of the rights of the laboring man for years, and has voted the Democratic ticket ever since the second election of Andrew Jackson, refuses to indorse Greeley, and says that he will vote for Grant and Wilson. He praises particularly Grant and Wilson's practical effort in behalf of the laboring men, and instances the President's prompt proclamation that wages should not be reduced because of the reduction in the number of hours.

A Washington County Democrat to Take the Stump for Grant.

Mr. Thomas Ingalls, of Greenwich, Washington County, a life-long Democrat of much influence in his section, has publicly announced his intention to take the stump for Grant this Fall. The Greenwich Journal says that Mr. Ingalls is an effective speaker, and his consequence of being on the right side will enable him to bring many votes for the re-election of President Grant.

Senator Ferry, of Connecticut, Remains Free to Choose.

With characteristic effrontery the Tribune endeavored to pursuade what readers it has remaining to it that the absence of Senator O. S. Ferry, of Connecticut, from the grand Republican ratification meeting in New-Haven was due to opposition to the re-election of President Grant. Senator Ferry will undoubtedly soon give public expression to his strong desire for the election of Grant and Wilson, and meanwhile he has explained to a personal friend the reason of his absence the other night. He says, in a letter which is published in the Norwalk (Conn.) Gazette: "You ask if there is any significance in my absence from the ratification meeting at New-Haven the other day. Of course not. You know that I am seeking the more perfect re-establishment of my health by absolute rest and quiet during the Summer months. I was invited a week beforehand, by telegraph, to speak at New-Haven. I replied by telegraph also, that I could not. By some mistake, however, I was announced to speak, and hence the disappointment. I support the Grant and Wilson ticket. Before it was made I had expressed my opinion of Mr. Greeley as a candidate. I have not changed it. By November it will be found that the opinion of the country has settled in the same direction. Make your mind easy about Connecticut. The State will give to Gen. Grant, under present circumstances, a larger majority than it did four years ago."

The Way Greeley Committees are Formed—Sharp Letter from a Long Islander.

The following spicy correspondence which has recently passed between the Secretary of a Greeley Association and Mr. J. C. Moses, well illustrates the tactics of the supporters of the Tammany candidate:

GREEN POINT, July 12, 1872.

SIR: As one of the Executive Committee of the Liberal Republican Association of the Seventeenth Ward, you are respectfully requested to meet with that Committee at the residence of Mr. James S. Douglass, No. 193 Guernsey-street, between Calyer-street and Meeker-avenue, next Wednesday evening, July 17, at 8 o'clock.

Yours respectfully,
JAMES S. DOUGLASS, Secretary.
JOHN C. MOSES, Esq.

GREEN POINT, Long Island, July 17, 1872.

James S. Douglass, Esq., Secretary:

SIR: I have to acknowledge the receipt of your favor of the last, requesting me to attend a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Liberal Republican Association of the Seventeenth Ward.

In reply, I have to say that I have had no previous intimation that I was one of the Executive Committee, and if my name appears on your records as such, it has been done without my knowledge or consent. This fact alone would compel me to decline.

But there is another reason, and one more entitled to consideration, and that is, that I am the unconditional friend of no party or self-seeking men who, for the sake of political preferment, seek to attain their end by the disruption of the Republican Party. Although I have been a Tribune reader for many years, and a warm admirer of Horace Greeley, still I do not think that his election would be of such positive benefit to the country as would result from the re-election of Gen. Grant.

This being my sincere conviction, I shall do all in my power to advance the election of Gen. Grant, and holding such opinions, I would be out of place in taking any part in your meeting.

Please erase my name from your roll, and put down in column of remarks that I am a Grant man.

JOHN C. MOSES,
No. 79 Dupont-street.

Democratic Slap of the Tribune.

Senator Trumbull accidentally told more truth than he intended while speaking at a Democratic meeting in Morris, Ill., the other day. A correspondent of the Chicago Inter-Ocean thus explains it: "He said that St. Clair County gave Mr. Grant 1,500 majority in 1868, and that it would give Mr. Grant 2,000 majority in 1872. The crowd commenced cheering right away, as the most of them were Republicans. Mr. Trumbull was in a moment that he had made a blunder, and took it back and said that he meant Greeley. It was the only cheer he got through his whole speech."

A Significant Sign.

It would seem that the Democracy of a great State like Ohio ought to be able to keep alive a Democratic newspaper at the State capital. But the telegraph has brought the significant information that the Columbus Statesman has died for want of support. The Statesman was a strongly partisan paper and so edited that it ought to have been acceptable to the average Democratic taste. That the withering blight of Greeleyism has carried it off so early in the campaign does not indicate that Greeley's friends are numerous in the Buckeye State.

Another Cheering Report from Mississippi.

The Providence Journal, Senator Anthony's paper, says that a private letter from a member of the Legislature of Mississippi, written on the 15th inst., expresses the belief that Grant and Wilson will carry the State by about 25,000 majority.

An Enthusiastic Republican Meeting of the Germans in Newark.

A large number of the Germans of Newark assembled last evening at Turn Hall, to effect an organization for the coming campaign. As an expression of the feeling of our German citizens, the meeting was a decided success, nearly all the leading merchants and manufacturers in the city of that nationality being present. The meeting was called to order by Dr. Frodolin, of Illinois, who nominated Dr. Charles Schnitz as President, and an Organization Committee for all the wards in the City formed. Mr. Benedict Prieth, the editor of the Welsh paper, made a stirring speech, reviewing the history of the Republican Party, and showing the need of its further existence. His speech was received with the greatest enthusiasm, and the meeting then adjourned. The Committee, after organization, will call additional meetings.

A Democratic Ward Going for Grant and Wilson.

The Democrats of the Twenty-first Ward, one of the strongest Democratic districts in the City, are rapidly enrolling themselves for Grant and Wilson. Last evening the third meeting of the Grant Campaign Club of the Eighteenth Assembly District, which includes this Ward, was held at No. 386 Second-avenue, the proprietor of the hall, himself an old Democrat, giving the use of the room free. No less than 115 new members signed the roll, the Association, although just organized, having 225 names on its books. Nearly all of whom are earnest working men who have heretofore voted with the Democratic Party. The officers of the Club are as follows: President, Edward Gorman; Vice-President, Michael Garry; Treasurer, James Pitch; Secretaries, Francis Donohue and William O'Brien; Sergeant-at-arms, James McNamee. Another meeting will be held next Wednesday evening.

The Kings County Germans Organizing for Grant and Wilson.

The delegates of the German Republican Central Committee of Kings County met at the hall over the Brooklyn Post-office, last evening, for the purpose of organizing a German Central Campaign organization. The meeting was called to order by Gen. William Meyer, and Mr. S. Suttler was chosen President pro tem. Mr. Spitzer, in a brief address, urged the necessity of organization. A permanent organization was then effected by the election of Gen. Meyer President, who, in taking the chair, strongly antitioned the present course of Gen. Schurz, and condemned his conduct toward the President. The roll being called, it was found that a delegation was present from every Ward except the Fourth. Further organization was postponed until the next meeting, and a nominating committee, composed of Messrs. Strauss, Carl Friedrich, Field and Sattler, was appointed to make nominations for the other officers to be elected.

A Scrow.

A large excursion party started on Tuesday morning from South Sixth-street, Williamsburg, for Fair Haven, Shrewsbury River. On the way there a vote was taken on the boat for the respective Presidential candidates, which resulted as follows: Grant, 81; Greeley, 17. This is a good showing for Williamsburg.

The Fifteenth Assembly District Grant and Wilson Campaign Club.

A meeting of the Fifteenth Assembly District Grant and Wilson Campaign Club was held, last evening, at Broome's Hall, No. 346 West Thirty-third-street, the President, Mr. Hugh Turner, in the chair. Several new names were added to the roll, making altogether over 150 members. The following officers, nominated at the last meeting, were elected: First Vice-President—James O'Rourke. Second Vice-President—George F. Pomeroy. Recording Secretary, Wm. Stuart; Financial Secretary, Edward Fake; Corresponding Secretary, F. Connell; Sergeant-at-arms, Jas. Mc. Fisher. The Chairman was authorized to appoint a Finance Committee and return their names at the next meeting. The following gentlemen were elected delegates to the Grant and Wilson Central Campaign Club: Messrs. Hatton, Boyd, McMahon, Gass, Gordon, Peterkin, Finton and Merrigan. The meeting adjourned until next Wednesday evening, giving large rousing cheers for Grant and Wilson before retiring.

A Week Account of a Greeley Ovation in Brooklyn.

The announcement that there would be a "grand Greeley and Brown demonstration and banner raising at the junction of Fulton and Flatbush avenues," drew together against point, last evening, about 1,500 persons, of whom, honestly speaking, three-fourths, if not more, were boys, and many of the remainder were Grant men, who merely stopped to see the "grand demonstration." The county revenues of somebody's stock of Chinese lanterns were strung across the street on a single string, and had to be widely spaced to reach across. A half dozen or so of five-cent sky-rockets were touched off. One or two only mounted above the tops of the houses. One shot across the street and landed among the musicians on the balcony of the Brooklyn Opera-house, where it exploded. The musicians took to their heels, and did not rally again at that spot, but went below among the crowd, where they could toot "Dixie" without fear of sky-rockets. At 8½ o'clock the "banner" was run out of a second-story window, without best of drum, blast of trumpet, or sound of congratulation from the crowd. After a few minutes of terrible suspense a voice from the window aforesaid called for three cheers for "Greeley and Brown," and then the same voice led off. But the effort failed. There was no response whatever from the crowd, and the first installment of the three cheers from the window in question was left hanging in derision from below. The other two cheers were reserved for a more auspicious occasion. After that, a sort of funeral procession was formed to the Opera-house. There was a disconcerting array of empty seats for the speakers to talk to. The President of the Eleventh Ward Grant and Brown Association said a word or two in favor of the Confederate soldiers, and then introduced Mr. T. E. Parks, of Washington County, who apologized for being present, and then told what he knew about Mr. Greeley. Other speakers followed, but the meeting been a "Pure-Democratic Tammany Hall County milk" that flows from the town-pump, and finally died out from pure inanition.

How It Goes in Schoharie.

To the personal knowledge of the editor of the Albany Evening Journal a Democrat residing in one of the towns of Schoharie County has given this report from his school district: "In my school district there are eleven Republicans, every one of whom will vote for Grant; there are thirty-six Democrats, fifteen of whom will vote for Greeley." They had canvassed the matter among themselves, and had reduced it to exact figures.

Meeting of the Greeley State Committee—Secret Conference—A Remarkable Document.

Obedient to the call of Gen. John Cochrane, the Liberal Republican State Committee assembled at the Astor House, yesterday, and held a secret meeting in the small room adjoining Room No. 14. The meeting was a very protracted one, the how-to-beat-Grant problem being one that requires a great deal of talk and admits of no satisfactory solution. The room where the meeting was held is very small, and the door was locked and bolted. Some of the members shut out from it felt apprehensive that the shut-up Committee would be overcome by the heat. The arrival of Coroner Young, who walked hurriedly into the head-quarters, suggested the idea that he might have been summoned to an inquest. These apprehensions proved groundless, however, and when the bolted door finally divide the rooms were thrown open, and Gen. John Cochrane emerged, wearing a smile upon his face, and carrying a package of written documents in his hands. He was immediately surrounded by a swarm of reporters, who "buzzed" him for the news. He told them that the members of the Committee had met to compare notes about the "situation." The reports were satisfactory to those concerned, and the Liberal Republicans were organizing throughout the State.

He took especial pride in announcing for publication an address from the Dublin Young Men's Association, head-quarters Standard House, East Broadway. The preamble and resolutions contained in the address are certainly worth quoting. They are as follows, verbatim et literatim:

Whereas, By giving our support to Horace Greeley, we support liberty to all men, and a man who has never swerved from the object which he has maintained since he joined a party, and has supported that party until it was made a scourge to carry an election.

Whereas, He, the said Horace Greeley, inserts in the platform of Liberal Republicanism, amnesty to a down-trodden people who have been defeated in a civil strife, and after which animosity should be sunk in oblivion, we should support the said Horace Greeley on these principles alone, if not for anything else; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Association, composed of Irishmen, Americans and Irish-Americans, do support the ticket having the names of Horace Greeley and Benjamin Gratz Brown on it, and that we, as a body, shall, as an association, do all in our power to secure the return of men favoring liberty and amnesty, and who are not in favor of "Addition, Division and Silence."

Signed on behalf of the Association, &c., &c.

The address is printed on silk for better preservation. It is very evident it was not written by graduates of the Dublin University. Intelligent Irishmen seems scarce in the Greeley ranks.

The Welsh Press.

The false claim by the Greeley organs that the Welsh paper published in Utica, Y Drych, supported Greeley and Brown has already been disposed of in the TIMES. That journal's leading article last week said that it is easier for Grant's opponents to trick at his Administration than it would be for them to improve it. Of other Welsh papers in the country, a correspondent writes us as follows: "The Sunar America, published in Scranton, Penn., is a thorough Republican paper, and hoists Grant and Wilson's names at its masthead. There is another Welsh paper published at Pittsburg which declares for Grant and Wilson, and says that the Welsh vote in Pennsylvania can carry the Republican ticket in that State."

Local Notes.

The Republicans of Queens County will hold primaries on Friday, Aug. 2, for the election of a county Republican committee.

The North Hempstead Colored Republican Club will celebrate the adoption of the Fifteenth Amendment, at Westbury, Aug. 2.

The Republican Association of Jamaica is taking the necessary steps to organize a Grant and Wilson campaign club. It holds a meeting Saturday evening to arrange for entering upon the campaign.

The Fifteenth Assembly District Greeley and Brown Campaign Club met last night. The usual stereotyped addresses were made in favor of Greeley. Boastful resolutions were adopted, after which the meeting adjourned.

At the meeting of the Eleventh Assembly District Regular Republican Association, corner of Twenty-third-street and Broadway, last night, Mr. Thos. C. Acton presiding, Mr. Geo. M. Van Nort, Commissioner of Public Works, was proposed, and unanimously elected a member amid loud cheers.

A Grant and Wilson Club has been organized in Hempstead. The colored men of Flushing have organized for Grant and Wilson. The Patchogue Republicans are to organize to-night. Hon. Henry A. Reeves, Ex-Democratic Congressman from the First District, has renounced Greeley.

The Twelfth Assembly District Grant and Wilson Working Men's Campaign Club met last evening, at Faller's Hall, No. 161 Avenue B, John C. Graham presiding. Thirty-six new members were received into the Club, which brings the roster up to near 300. Before the campaign opens this organization promises a phalanx of 500 good men.

At a meeting of the Eleventh Assembly District Republican Association, last evening, at Republican Hall, Thomas C. Acton, Esq., in the chair, Messrs. S. G. Acton, Seymour A. Dance and Robert Wylie were appointed a committee to select canvassers and polls-clerks for the coming election. Forty new members were enrolled during the evening.

The Democratic National Committee's Head-quarters, Slaughter House, Union-square, were thrown open last night. Not a soul was present during the evening, and their solitude suggested the grim appropriateness of the rooms as a place to receive the Democratic corpse, which has remained unburied since the Baltimore Convention. The defunct carcass will be washed, as this place, until the funeral takes place in November.

Last evening the citizens of the First and Second Districts of Castleton, Staten Island, held a mass-meeting in the Assembly Rooms, New-Brighton, Hon. Mr. Judd, presiding. The following prominent residents, forming a Committee on Organization, were present: Messrs. Canfile, Smith, Haggerty, Waters, Oppenshaw, Buckland and Miller. Speeches were made by Messrs. Cochrane and others. A Grant and Wilson Campaign Club was organized.

THE TRUTH AT LAST.

The Document Mr. Greeley Can't Bear to Have Published.

It Reveals the Rebel Plots for an Insurrection in the North, for Firing Northern Merchant Vessels and for Burning Northern Cities.

Agents Hired and Money Paid for these Purposes.

"Papers that Would Utterly Ruin and Destroy Prominent Men in the North."

Official Report of the Rebel Agent Whom Greeley Went to Visit in Canada.

How Greeley, in Conference with the Rebels, Helped the Rebel Cause.

We publish below in full, the report of Jacob Thompson, the rebel agent in Canada during the year 1864. It will be readily seen by it why Mr. Greeley's organ does not desire its publication as a campaign document by the Republican Congressional Committee. That Mr. Greeley is afraid of it, is to be seen from the following, which appeared in the Tribune yesterday morning:

"So it seems that the rebel archives, purchased by the Government for $75,000, are to be published as a campaign document by the Grant party. There has been already a great deal of history-writing at public expense, of which the most shining example is Mr. Badeau's use of War Department records and clerks in making his eminent work. But this rare and new publication is a new attempt 'to fire the Northern heart' for the net sum of $75,000. The slender pretext, that the purchase of the documents was made so that the treason of rebel claimants for damages from the Government might be exposed, disappears. It is intended to reopen the old sore again; we are to have the city burning, the well-poisoning, and the contagion-spreading business all retold, for fear people might forget there had been a war, and make up their minds to live at peace with their countrymen. Is this worth while? Must these dead-and-gone quarrels be revived everlastingly that demagogues may thrive?"

No one who reads the document will doubt that it is "worth while" to make it public, and for these reasons:

1. It is the first conclusive direct evidence of the connivance of Democratic leaders with the rebel scheme of a Northern insurrection, showing, as it does, that they were furnished with large sums of money, which were used in furthering peace meetings, in purchasing arms, and in perfecting the concerted plan for violent resistance to the drafts.

2. It is the first conclusive, direct evidence of the responsibility of the rebel Government for the infernal plots to burn New-York, Brooklyn, Cincinnati, and other Northern cities, showing, as it does, that money was paid to those engaged in this hellish business, and that some of them bore commissions in the rebel army.

3. It is conclusive, direct evidence, that the success of the Democratic ticket in 1864 was regarded by the rebel Government as equivalent to Confederate victories, and that to that success the peace conference sought by Horace Greeley was known by the rebel Government to contribute largely.

Finally, it shows that the rebel-Democratic efforts at aiding the rebel cause in the North took place at the same time, and probably in concert with Mr. Greeley's attempt to defeat Mr. Lincoln's election by proposing his withdrawal from the canvass. This he did in the following letter, addressed to the Governors of the loyal States:

NEW-YORK, Sept. 3, 1864.

Hon. ——, ——:

YOUR EXCELLENCY: The undersigned have been requested by a body of influential Unionists to communicate with the loyal Governors, for the purpose of eliciting replies to the following queries:

1. In your judgment, is the re-election of Mr. Lincoln a probability?

2. In your judgment, can your own State be carried for Mr. Lincoln?

3. In your judgment, do the interests of the Union party, and so of the country, require the substitution of another candidate in place of Mr. Lincoln?

In making these queries we give no opinion of our own, and request yours only for the most private and confidential use.

Yours truly, HORACE GREELEY,
Editor of the Tribune, (and two others.)

Is it any wonder that Mr. Greeley shrinks in terror from the publication of documents containing such revelations as this does?

The letter, as given below, is from a photographic copy of the original, which is indorsed with Benjamin's initials. It may, therefore, be implicitly relied on:

[Rec'd Feb. 13, '65, J. P. B.]
TORONTO, C. W., Dec. 8, 1864.

Hon. J. P. Benjamin, Secretary of State:

SIR: Several times have I attempted to send you communications, but I have no assurance that any one of them has been received. I have relaxed no effort to carry out the objects the Government had in view in sending me here. I had hoped at different times to have accomplished more, but still I do not think my mission has been altogether fruitless. At all events, we have afforded the North-western States the amplest opportunity to throw off the galling dynasty at Washington, and openly to take ground in favor of State rights and civil liberty. This fact must satisfy the large class of discontents at home of the readiness and willingness of the Administration to avail itself of every proffered assistance in our great struggle for independence. On my arrival here I heard that there was such an organization as the order of the "Sons of Liberty" in the Northern States, and my first effort was to learn its strength, its principles and its objects, and to position, as best myself, in communication with its leading spirits. This was effected without much difficulty or delay. I was received among them with cordiality, and the greatest confidence of one extended to me. The number of the members was larger, but not as great as Mr. Hall, in his official report, represented it to be. Its objects were patriotic. Its principles were that the Government was based on the consent of the parties to it; that the States were the parties, and were sovereign; that there was no authority in the General Government to coerce a sending State. The resolutions of 1798 and 1799 were set forth as presenting the true theory of the Government. Its organization was essentially military; it had its commanders of divisions, of brigades, of regiments, of companies. In the month of June last, the universal feeling among its members, leaders and privates was that it was useless to hold a Presidential election; Lincoln held the power, and would certainly re-elect himself, and there was no hope but in force. The belief was entertained and freely expressed that by a bold, vigorous and concerted movement, the three great North-western States of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio could be seized and held. This being done, the States of Kentucky and Missouri could easily be lifted from their peaceable condition and placed on their feet, and thus in sixty days would end the war. While everything was moving on smoothly to a supposed successful consummation, the first interruption in the calculation was the postponement of the meeting of the Democratic Convention from the 4th of July to the 29th of August; but preparations still went on, and in one of the States the 20th or July was fixed as the day for a movement. But, before the day arrived, a general Council of the Order from different States was called, and it was thought the movement on the 20th of July would be premature, and the 16th of August was fixed upon for a general uprising. This postponement was thought upon the ground that it was necessary to have a series of public meetings to prepare the public mind, and appointments for public peace meetings were made—one at Peoria, one at Springfield, and one at Chicago on the 16th. The first one was at Peoria, and, to make it a success, I agreed that so much money as was necessary would be furnished by me. It was held, and was a decided success. The vast multitudes who attended seemed to be swayed but by one leading idea—peace. The friends were encouraged and strengthened, and seemed anxious for the day when they would do something to hasten them to the great goal of peace. About this time that correspondence between our friends and Horace Greeley made its appearance. Lincoln's manifesto shocked the country. The belief, in some way, prevailed over the North that the South would agree to a reconstruction, and the politicians, especially the leading ones, conceived the idea that on such an issue Lincoln could be beaten as the ballot-box; at all events, they argued that the trial of the ballot-box should be made before a resort to force, always a dernier resort. The Springfield meeting came off, but it was apparent that the fire exhibited at Peoria had already diminished. The whole tone of the speakers was that the people must rely on the ballot-box for redress of grievances; the nerves of the leaders of the order began to relax. About this time a large lot of arms were purchased and sent to Indianapolis, which was discovered and some of the leading men, were charged with the design to arm the members of the order for treasonable purposes. Treachery showed itself at Louisville. Judge Bullitt and Dr. Kalfus were arrested and sent to Memphis. The day on which the great movement was to be made became known to Mr. McDonald, candidate for Governor of Indiana, and believing that it would mar his prospects for election unless prevented, he threatened to expose all the parties engaged unless the project was abandoned. Thus the day passed by and nothing was done. The Chicago Convention came, the crowd was immense, the feeling was unanimous for peace, a general impression prevailed that a reconstruction could be had and that it was necessary to so far pander to the military feeling as to take Gen. McClellan to secure a certain success. This nomination followed, as it was, by divers disclosures and arrests of persons, prominent members, totally demoralized the "Sons of Liberty." The feeling with the masses is as strong as ever—they are true, brave, and I believe willing and ready but they have no leaders. The vigilance of the Administration, its large detective force, the large bounties paid for treachery and the respectable men who have yielded to the temptation, added to the large military force stationed in those States, make organization and preparation almost an impossibility. A large sum of money has been expended in fostering, and furthering these operations, and it now seems to have been to little profit. But in reviewing the past I do not see how it could have been avoided, nor has it been spent altogether in vain. The apprehensions of the enemy have caused him to bring back and keep from the field in front, at least 60,000 to watch and crow beat the people at home. In this view of the subject, the same amount of money has effected so much in no other quarter since the commencement of the war. In July last, Capt. Chas. H. Cole, of Gen. Forrest's command, made his escape from prison. He represented to me that he had been appointed a lieutenant in our navy; I sent him around the lakes, with instructions to go as a lower deck passenger, to familiarize himself with all the channels, and different approaches to the several harbors, the strength of each place, the depositaries of coal, and especially to learn all that he could about the war steamer Michigan, and devise some plan for her capture or destruction. This duty he performed very satisfactorily. He was then instructed to return and put himself in communication with the officers of the Michigan, and, feeling his way, to endeavor to purchase the boat from its officers. For a time, he thought he would succeed in this if he could give the guarantees of payment of the sums stipulated, but, by degrees, the question was dropped, and he asked permission to organize a force, board and take her. This was given, and Acting Master John Y. Beall was sent him to aid in the organization; and in carrying out the enterprise. Their plan was well conceived, and held out the promise of success. It had been previously ascertained from escaped prisoners from Johnson's Island that an organization existed among the prisoners on the island for the purpose of surprising the guard and capturing the island. The presence of the steamer Michigan, which carried fourteen guns, was the only obstacle. Secret communications were had by which they were advised that on the night of the 19th of September an attempt to seize the Michigan would be made. On that night Capt. Cole, who had previously established the friendliest relations with the officers of the steamer, was to have a wine-drinking with them on board, and at a given hour Acting Master Beall was to appear as a boat, to be obtained for that purpose, with a sufficient body of Confederate soldiers to board and take the steamer. Should they capture the steamer, a cannon shot sent through the officers quarters on Johnson's Island was to signify to the prisoners that the hour for their release had come. Should they take the island, boats were to be improvised and Sandusky was to be attacked; if taken, the prisoners were to be mounted, and make for Cleveland, the boats re-operating, and from Cleveland the prisoners were to make Wheeling, and thence to Virginia. The day on which the movement was the capture of the Michigan. On the evening of the 18th, by some treachery, Cole was arrested, and the messenger who was to meet Acting Master Beall at Kelley's Island did not reach him. Disappointed, but nothing daunted, Acting Master Beall, having witnessed the Philo Parsons, passenger steamer, from Detroit to Sandusky, went on his way toward Johnson's Island. Having landed at Middle Bass Island to secure a supply of wood, the steamer Island Queen, with a large number of passengers and thirty-two soldiers, came up alongside and lashed herself to the Parsons. An attack was at once resolved upon. The passengers and soldiers were then made prisoners, and the boat delivered up to our men. The soldiers were regularly paroled, the passengers were left on the island, having given their promise not to leave for twenty-four hours, and the boat was towed out into the lake and sunk. The Parsons was then steered directly for the Bay of Sandusky. Here the men, from certain reasons not altogether satisfactory, but possibly fortunately, refused to make the attack on the Michigan. Beall returned, landed at Sandwich, C. W., and the men scattered through the country. Most of them have returned to the Confederate States, but a few days since acting Master Bennet G. Burley was arrested, and the trial is now going on for his delivery under the Extradition treaty. If we had Cole's, Beall's, or his own commission, I should not fear the result; as it is, they will have to prove that they acted under my order, and that will in all probability secure his release, but it may lead to my expulsion from the Provinces—at least, I have it from a reliable source that this last proposition has been pressed upon the Canadian authorities and they have considered it. Should the course of events take this direction, unadvised by you, I shall consider it my duty to remain where I am and abide the issue. I should prefer, if it be possible, to have your views on the subject. Capt. Cole is still a prisoner on Johnson's Island. In obedience to your suggestion, as far as it was practicable, soon after my arrival here I urged the people in the North to convert their paper money into gold and withdraw it from the market. I am satisfied this policy was adopted and carried into effect, to some extent, but how extensively I am unable to state. What effect it had on the gold market it is impossible to estimate, but certain it is that gold continued to appreciate until it went to 200. The high price may have tempted many to change their policy, because afterward gold fell in the market to 150. When it was about 180, and exportation of gold was so small that there appeared to be but little or no demand for it, Mr. John Porterfield, formerly a banker in Nashville, but now a resident of Montreal, was furnished with $100,000, and instructed to proceed to New-York to carry out a financial policy of his own conception, which consisted in the purchase of gold and exporting the same, selling it for sterling bills of exchange, and then again converting his exchange into gold. This process involved a certain loss, the cost of transhipment. He was instructed by Mr. Clay and myself to go on with his policy until he had expended $25,000, with which he supposed he would ship directly $5,000,000, and induce others to ship much more, and then, if the effect upon the gold market was not very perceptible, he was to desist, and return to Canada, and restore the money unexpended. By his last report he had caused the shipment of more than two millions of gold at an expense of less than $10,000; but it seems that a Mr. Lyons, who had been a former partner of Porterfield, was arrested by Gen. Butler on the ground that he was exporting gold, and, although Mr. Lyons had no connection with Mr. Porterfield in this transaction, yet he thought it prudent to return to Canada, and, while he retains the unexpended balance of the $25,000 to carry out his instructions, he has restored $75,000. I must confess that the first shipment had a marked effect on the market. I am inclined to the opinion that his theory will work great damage and distrust to the Federal finances if vigorously followed up, and if no untoward circumstances should interfere with the operation. Soon after I reached Canada a Mr. Minor Major visited me and represented himself as an accredited agent from the Confederate States to destroy steam-boats on the Mississippi River, and that his operations were suspended for want of means. I advanced to him $2,000 in Federal currency, and soon afterward several boats were burned at St. Louis, involving an immense loss of property to the enemy. He became suspected, as he represented to me, of being the author of this burning, and from that time both he and his men have been hiding, and consequently have done nothing. Money has been advanced to Mr. Churchill, of Cincinnati, to organize a corps for the purpose of incendiarism in that city. I consider him a true man, and, although as yet he has effected but little, I am in constant expectation of hearing of effective work in that quarter.

Previous to the arrival of Lieut. Col. Martin and Lieut. Headly, bringing an unsigned note from you, all the different places where our prisoners are confined—Camp Douglas, Rock Island, Camp Morton, Camp Chase, Elmira, had been thoroughly examined, and the conclusion was forced upon us that all efforts to release them, without an outside co-operation, would bring disaster upon the prisoners and result in no good. All projects of that sort were abandoned, except that at Camp Douglas, where Capt. Hines still believed he could effect their release. We yielded to his firmness, zeal and persistence, and his plans were plausible, but treachery defeated him before his well-laid schemes were developed. Having nothing else on hand, Col. Martin expressed a wish to organize a corps to burn New-York City. He was allowed to do so, and a most daring attempt has been made to fire that City; but their reliance on the Greek fire has proved a misfortune; it cannot be depended on as an agent in such work. I have no faith whatever in it, and no attempt shall hereafter be made, under my general directions, with any such materials. I knew nothing whatever of the raid on St. Albans until after it transpired. Desiring to have a boat on whose Captain and crew reliance could be placed, and on board of which arms could be sent to convenient points for arming such vessels as could be seized for operations on the lakes, I aided Dr. James T. Bates, of Kentucky, an old steam-boat Captain, in the purchase of the steamer Georgian. She had scarcely been transferred, when the story went abroad that she had been purchased and armed for the purpose of sinking the Michigan, releasing the prisoners on Johnson's Island, and destroying the shipping on the lakes and the cities on their margin. The wildest consternation prevailed in all the border cities. At Buffalo two tugs had cannon placed on board; four regiments of soldiers were sent there, two of them represented to have been drawn from the Army of Virginia. Bells were rung at Detroit, and churches broken up on Sunday. The whole lake shore was a scene of wild excitement. Boats were sent out which boarded the Georgian, and found nothing contraband on board; but still the people were incredulous.

The base and curse of carrying out anything in this country is the surveillance under which we act. Detectives, or those ready to give information, stand at every street corner. Two or three cannot interchange ideas without a reporter. The Presidential election has so demoralized the leaders of the order of the "Sons of Liberty" that a new organization under new leaders has become an absolute necessity. This is now going forward with great vigor and success. The new order is styled the "Order of the Star." There is a general expectation that there will soon be a new draft, and the members swear resistance to another draft. It is purely military, wholly independent of politics and politicians. It is given out among the members that Stonewall Jackson is the founder of the order, and the name has its significance from the stars in the outlaw of Southern officers. There is no ground to doubt that the masses to a large extent of the North are true and true, and believe Lincoln a tyrant and usurper. During my stay in Canada, a great amount of property has been destroyed by burning. The information brought me as to the perpetrators is as conflicting and contradictory, that I am satisfied that neither can be certainly traced, though claims to be presented at the War Office are payment for this kind of work, not one dollar should be advanced on any proof adduced until all the parties concerned may have an opportunity for making out and presenting proof. Several parties claim to have done the work at St. Louis, New-Orleans, Louisville, Brooklyn, Philadelphia and at Cairo. Within the last few days, Dr. K. J. Stewart, of Virginia, has reached this place, and very mysteriously informs me that he has a plan for the execution of something which has received the sanction of the President. He is in want of money, and stated to me that you gave him a draft on me for $20,000 in gold, which has been lost on the way. He has sent back to Richmond for a renewal. He has rented a large house and moved his family into it. I cannot doubt his word, but of course I do not feel authorized to advance him money without your authority or that of the President.

THE OLD NORTH STATE.

Senator Wilson's Great Speech at Beaufort.

The Republicans Sure to Carry the State—Glorious Work of the Party of Freedom—A Glance at the Democracy.

From Our Special Correspondent.

MOREHEAD CITY, Sunday, July 21, 1872.

Lest some one who has had the misfortune to be cast upon these sands may suppose that I have dated this letter with intent to deceive," I will frankly state that this is not a city; on the contrary, it is a wilderness, which has not even the recommendation of "howling." The best of seaside resorts are only aggravations to the average man, and what this one may be imagined when I say distinctly that this is one of the worst. It is nothing more than a dozen dilapidated houses scattered about that basin of the sea which is entered through Old Topsail Inlet, and on which, on the opposite, in the old destitute town of Beaufort, which gained some notoriety as a coaling station for our blockaders during the war. One of the straggling, decrepit houses which make up Morehead City is a "watering-place," and I desire to say nothing more about it than that if I had come here for pleasure I would have been woefully disappointed. Coming on business, I had the enjoyment of wondering at the stupidity of the men and women who had left comfortable homes to burrow in mite holes, called bedrooms, and to commiserate the luckless children who had been brought hither by their unreflecting parents.

I was forced here by the necessity of reaching the scene of operations of that apostle of freedom, Hon. Henry Wilson, the Republican candidate for Vice-President. At Greensboro and Charlotte, which are swept by the cool pure air of the mountains, I had heard of his triumphal progress, and to witness it I was forced to descend to the cloacinas of the sea and the noxious vapors of the marshes that fringe all along the North Carolina coast. The journey by rail is 187 miles, and occupied nineteen hours, which is about the average of twelve miles per hour, which is the rate prescribed by law or inexorable usage for the railroads of this State. There is the compensation, however, that one has plenty of time to pick up observations en route, and this amounts to a great deal on a tour of political prospecting.

AN INTERESTING OCCASION.

With these means, of which I made full use, previous impressions concerning the probable result of the pending struggle were confirmed. I met many who have made it a business for weeks past to talk politics to the people of the Old North State, who are as extremely patient under the infliction that one candidate for a county office song to keep an appointment drafted only three colored and two white electors on board, yet addressed them for three hours with an impassioned fervor, and at the close had the satisfaction of finding his audience of the same size; if no one else had arrived, none of the original hearers had departed. Indeed, no one in North Carolina ever departs from a place where there is the slightest possibility of hearing a political speech, and it John Cochrane and poly known of this peculiarity in time, he might have inflicted his longest harangue upon a long-suffering race with the utmost confidence that it would be heard. Sometimes the harangues here are too interesting to be tedious, for on my journey I heard of a meeting in one county of all the candidates for local offices for joint discussion, where ugly questions were asked as to the whereabouts of property which belonged to the Confederate Government at the time of the collapse, and where every Democratic candidate was obliged to rise to a personal explanation in consequence of charges that he was either a thief, forger, falsifier, or debauchee, but the favorite charge was larceny. From the description of this scene which was given me, it must have been extremely interesting, and I do not wonder that more than a hundred people remained in attendance upon it for eight hours. It would be too much, however, to expect this sort of thing on every occasion, and the persistence of the people in listening to the ordinary interminable political speeches is both amazing and amusing.

REPUBLICAN ORGANIZATION.

There is no reason to suppose that these long talks are bearing fruit, but I obtained facts while flying to the sea at the rate of twelve miles per hour, which show that the Republican Party is steadily gaining ground in the State. One gentleman informed me that he has canvassed seventy-two of the ninety-two counties of the State, and he is confident, from all the indications of popular sentiment which he gathered, that the Republican Party will carry the State by from 12,000 to 15,000. He was able from his hats to give the names of hundreds of men who have never before voted the Republican ticket, but who can be depended on to do so on the 1st of August. Another gentleman, whom intimate acquaintance with the people was confined to the Second and part of the First Congressional Districts, told the same story, and was able to give such details as justified the faith that was in him. I learned further while on this journey that the Republican Party is admirably organized, and everywhere in the State ready for action. As a sample of how completely the situation has been mastered, I may mention that Senator Pool has lists of the voters by township, instead of counties, and is fully advised of the probable vote of each one of these 900 districts of the State. By local organizations, all timid or half converted electors are being reached, and if there were plenty of money here for legitimate expenses, I have no doubt that the Republican majority would reach 20,000. That it will not do so will be wholly due to the lack of means for proper expenses.

SENATOR WILSON'S WORK.

That something of moment is being done is owing wholly to the efforts of such men as Senator Wilson, who is just concluding his labors in the State, which commenced on Wednesday with a very large meeting at Wilson, and have been continued since by vast gatherings at Wilmington, Newbern and Beaufort. The two latter were held yesterday, and at Newbern twenty-five hundred people were assembled, and listened with marked attention to the orator. In the evening he spoke at Beaufort to a large crowd and with great effect, notwithstanding the efforts of some Democratic ruffians to disturb the meeting. The following is the speech he delivered on this occasion:

SENATOR WILSON'S SPEECH.

It is said that there is an uprising of the American people, but whether this be so or not, will be a great part decided by the election here on the 1st of August. If the Democrats carry this State, that will increase their vote outside of North Carolina by many thousands. I say in all frankness to gentlemen supporting the Democratic ticket that if they can carry North Carolina at this election, they will impose upon the Republican Party a difficult task to maintain their control of the Government of the United States; and I say to my Republican friends, if they carry North Carolina, they will add at least a quarter of a million of votes to the Republican Party outside of this State. I say to you, further, that if you carry this State by a decided majority, you will destroy this combination to elect Horace Greeley President of the United States. [Applause.] The strength in this combination is in hope. Hope springs eternal in the human breast.

Our Democratic friends have seen hopes for a long time to obtain control of the Government. They managed for it in 1868; they have battled for it with great vigor and power since. With the money of the country, with patronage, with personal managers and large expenditures, and I have little respect for the judgment of that man who underrates the strength and power of the Democratic Party. Now, let me say to you here that in indorsing the Cincinnati platform and nominating Horace Greeley the Democratic Party, as Salmon P. Chase put it, left its principles, forms, measures, policies, history, character, everything of their past on God's green earth, behind them, and simply clung to the hope that this sacrifice would give them control of the Government. Now, gentlemen, let me tell you that this sacrifice is to be in vain. They took here to divorce the principles they are to have great gains in the North, but in the North these gains are said to be in the South; but you cannot find them on any part of the American Continent. In my opinion there are but two doubtful States in the North and West, and I expect to carry them both. The Democrats tell us they will carry this State by twenty thousand majority. I suppose, if I were to send a telegraphic dispatch to-morrow, I should be told that the Republicans will carry this State, that my friends would think I was mistaken for once. But let me say that we will carry North Carolina [illegible] every day. [Great applause.] I have no doubt of it

WEDNESDAY, July 24—P. M.

Foreign Exchange has become evidently weaker today. Not only has prime Sixty-day Sterling been offered direct at 109½, and on the street a sixteenth lower, but the quotation for Demand bills must also be changed. We quote them now as 110¼@110¼, without business even at the lower figure. Some inquiry for Cable transfers, at extreme rates, may be regarded as unimportant to the market. The business in Exchange was dull. No specie went out, and we hear of nothing positively engaged for to-morrow's steamer.

Gold was firm at 114½@114¾, with sales at 114@114 9-16, until the afternoon, when it weakened under the influence of Sterling Exchange, with sales as low as 114, and quotation 114@114½. At the close it was offered at 114½, and 114 7-16 was bid. Loans were carried over at low rates of interest, 1½@2 ¢ cent.

The Public Funds were steady in the morning. At noon, the offers of Five-Twenties to the Treasury Department for its weekly purchase of $1,000,000 amounted to $3,922,900, the prices being 114.27 to 114.61 and interest. The awards, however, were only $47,900, at prices, for the principal, from 114.35 downward. When the offers were filed the price of Gold was 114½@114¾; so that the awards, which assumed 114⅝ for par in Gold, on the later quotation 114½@114¾, caused much disappointment in some quarters. After this decision was known Bonds were weaker, and the 1867s sold an eighth lower, at 115¼.

Pacific Mail has had the stock market pretty much to itself all day, with the result, at last, of a recovery of about ½ ¢ cent. Opening about steady at 70½, the price fell on the call of stocks, to 70¼, and rose to 71 before 2 o'clock. After this, there was no reaction beyond ⅛ ¢ cent, and it closed steady at 71. Panama was steady during the whole day; with sales at 133, with 118½ bid. Erie has worked in harmony with London quotations, which show a decline of three-quarters ¢ cent, for the day. The extreme advance of yesterday afternoon to 24 did not hold this morning, and the day's sales, without anything like excitement, have been at 23¾@23⅞@23⅞@23⅞@23⅞. The stock was more expensive to borrows than on recent days, costing a bonus of 3-64 to 1-16 of one ¢ cent, through the morning, though declining to 1-32 later. Erie Preferred is 74½ bid, after sales at 74¾ and 75. In the rest of the market a very light business was done at rates that were barely steady. We give the range of sales: New-York Central, 97¾@98; 97½@98; Lake Shore, 92½@92¾; North-western, 74¾@74¾; Rock Island, 111¾@111¾@111¾; St. Paul, 56½@56¾; Wabash, 76½; Ohio, 35; Union Pacific, 37½@37¾, and C. C. and I. C., 35¼@35¼@35¾. St. Paul Preferred sold in the afternoon at 76¾, and North-western Preferred was quoted at 91¾@91¾. A few sales of Western Union Telegraph are reported at 83¾@83½. The investment shares were steady, with very moderate transactions.

Tennessee Bonds were steady at the recovery to 73 bid; but South Carolinas (new issue of January and July) have fallen back to 69½, a decline of 2 ¢ cent, in two days. The other State Bonds call for no remark. The Railroad Mortgages were fully steady; the Pacific issues, as yesterday, 101½ bid for Centrals, and 90 for Union Gold Sixes.

Money was 3 ¢ cent, on call in the morning, as usual recently. The afternoon, however, showed even less than customary demand, and an abundant supply was offered at 2 ¢ cent.

After the Second Board of the Exchange, the following quotations were made as against the last figures of the Stock Exchange afternoon:

The Custom-house returns of the Foreign Trade at New-York for the Fiscal Year 1872, ending June 30 ult., have just been completed by the figures for the month of June, and we present below our usual Summary for the Month and Year, compared with the results at New-York, of the previous Fiscal Year.

The Import entries at New-York for June were as follows, compared with the corresponding month of the year 1871:

	June, 1872.	June, 1871.
Dutiable Goods, Street	$9,500,000	$12,[illegible]
Dutiable Goods, Bonded	11,914,000	12,922,700
Free Goods	1,226,374	2,[illegible]
Total June entries	$22,640,000	[illegible]

The amount of goods of the previous importations withdrawn from Bond during the month is $7,584,071, or $10,398,667 less than went into Bond; so that the value of Goods actually marketed for the month, including articles free of duty, is $20,281,161, upon which the Customs paid amount to $6,943,238, or, at the average tariff, (including Free Goods) of 35 ¢ cent. The amount marketed in June, 1871, was $26,575,472, upon which the Customs were $10,092,910.

There was also entered during the month Foreign Specie of the value of $13,724, against $1,352,006, in June, 1871.

The comparative value of Foreign Goods entered at the Port of New-York, and of Foreign Goods actually marketed here in the Fiscal Years 1871-72 and 1870-71, compare as follows:

	1871-72. Fiscal Year.	1870-71. Fiscal Year.
Total entries	$413,424,778	$348,729,266
Total marketed	$360,200,512	$331,370,231
Customs thereon	147,000,383	120,291,[illegible]
Average tariff	40 ¢ cent.	36.60 ¢ cent.

Of which Free Goods in 1872, $30,078,000, and Free Goods in 1871, $32,[illegible].

The amount of foreign Specie, not included in the above, entered during the Fiscal Year, is $3,284,134, against $9,443,737 the previous year.

The actual monthly consumption (or values marketed) of Foreign Goods at the Port of New-York for the Fiscal Years 1871-72 and 1870-71 compare as follows:

	1871-72. Fiscal Year.	1870-71. Fiscal Year.
July	$29,[illegible]	$22,[illegible]
August	26,375,482	21,[illegible]
September	27,000,000	23,[illegible]
October	30,[illegible]	24,[illegible]
November	32,[illegible]	25,[illegible]
December	31,[illegible]	19,[illegible]
January	28,[illegible]	28,[illegible]
February	32,[illegible]	28,[illegible]
March	34,[illegible]	29,[illegible]
April	32,[illegible]	29,[illegible]
May	30,[illegible]	29,[illegible]
June	30,[illegible]	29,[illegible]
Total	[illegible]	[illegible]

The monthly Customs at this port received on Foreign (dutiable) Merchandise marketed were as follows:

July	$11,[illegible]	January	$12,[illegible]
August	16,[illegible]	February	14,[illegible]
September	14,[illegible]	March	14,[illegible]
October	13,[illegible]	April	13,[illegible]
November	9,[illegible]	May	10,[illegible]
December	8,[illegible]	June	8,[illegible]
Total New-York duties collected			$147,[illegible]
Miscellaneous out-port Customs			4,[illegible]
Total deposited at New-York			[illegible]

The export clearances from New-York for the month of June were as follows:

	June, 1872.	June, 1871.
Domestic produce	$19,[illegible]	$17,[illegible]
Foreign re-exports	1,[illegible]	[illegible]
Gold and silver	12,[illegible]	4,[illegible]
Total June clearances	$32,[illegible]	[illegible]

The exports of all descriptions for the Fiscal Years 1871-72 and 1870-71 compare as follows:

	1871-72. Fiscal Year.	1870-71. Fiscal Year.
Domestic produce	$[illegible]	$[illegible]
Foreign re-exports	10,[illegible]	[illegible]

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

OF THE GREAT MIDLAND RAILROAD.

NOW NEARLY COMPLETED.

The remainder of the FIRST MORTGAGE SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD BONDS, limited to $20,000 TO THE MILE on finished road, offered, in close cut the loan, at par and interest.

The New-Jersey Division of the Road is finished, and trains are now running into Jersey City. Free Ferry enables the road to run passenger cars a long distance. A short gap in the northern end of the New-York Division alone prevents running through from New-York to Chicago. Work is progressing on this section, both with the shovel and rail, and we have hopes to announce the completion of the entire road of this great Trunk Line from New-York to the Lakes.

These bonds, in our judgment, constitute a marked feature in the investment

INVESTMENT SECURITIES.

The Mortgage Bonds of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, through the Financial Agents, offer for sale the First Mortgage 7 per cent. Gold Bonds. They sell due in 10 years, both 7 % per cent. gold interest, payable semi-annually, are secured by first U. S. lien to the letter, and the security is held by Erie and only mortgage on

1. The Railroad, its Rights of Way, Franchise, Rolling Stock, and other property.

2. Its Traffic or Net Earnings.

3. A Government Grant of Land, averaging, on completion of the Road, about $2,000 above par value per mile of track.

The Road follows what is known as the Valley Route to the Pacific, ranked most of the way by an excellent country, and is assured in advance of a rapid and profitable traffic, which already awaits its completion. The work of construction is steadily and satisfactorily progressing; the settlement of the adjacent country and the building of towns keep pace with the advance of the road; a large body of the Company's lands is already in market, and the proceeds of sales will constitute a Sinking Fund for the redemption of the Company's Bonds, which are convertible at 110 into the Company's Lands at market prices.

Believing that these Bonds, both in point of safety and profitableness, combine such a security as intelligent investors can approve, we recommend them to the public. Government Bonds and all marketable securities are received in exchange at current quotations without cost to the investor.

FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS

Are being absorbed by an increasing demand for them.

Besides being the obligation of a wealthy corporation, composed of men of experience and high-toned commercial integrity, they are secured by a first mortgage on the road, revenues, land grant, franchise and equipments, combined in one instrument, and are readily negotiable both in the markets of this country and Europe.

A liberal sinking fund provided in the mortgage deed must advance the price upon the closing of the loan. Principal and interest payable in GOLD. Interest at eight (8 p. c.) per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, free of tax. Principal in Sixty years. Denominations, $1,000, $500 and $100. Coupons or Registered.

Price 97½ and accrued interest in currency, from Feb. 15, 1872.

Maps, circulars, documents and information furnished.

To Advertisers.

☞ For the accommodation of up-town residents, advertisements for insertion in the TIMES will be received at No. 54 West 23d-st., junction of Broadway and 6th-av.; No. 308 West 23d-st., opposite Grand Opera-house, and No. 1,241 Broadway, between 29th and 30th sts., at same rates as are charged at office of publication.

☞ The NEW-YORK TIMES has opened a branch office in Brooklyn at No. 111 Fulton-st., junction of Fulton and Main, where advertisements will be received until 5 P. M.

THE SEMI-WEEKLY TIMES of to-morrow will be published as a triple sheet, and will contain a full report of Senator Roscoe Conkling's great speech at the Cooper Institute, delivered on Tuesday evening. A biographical sketch of President Grant will also appear in this issue, together with a large amount of political and general news. Orders for this number should be sent in early. Single copies can be had at the counter, price in wrappers five cents each.

☞ Throughout the Presidential canvass, we shall publish fuller reports of meetings and conventions in each State than any other New-York journal. Very full dispatches will be forwarded by telegraph, supplemented by careful letters. Our desire is to place before the public the latest and most trustworthy information, and we have made ample arrangements for that purpose.

Although Gen. GRANT has recommended to the President the remission of the penalties and the release from imprisonment of all prisoners now in confinement, under sentence by military commissions organized under the reconstruction acts, we do not find a single Democratic paper applauding his course. The professions made by the copper-head journals of sympathy with the Southern people are false, and merely intended to gain votes. Gen. GRANT has shown more practical sympathy, and given more evidence of kindness toward rebels, than all the copperhead writers and politicians combined. His course has been singularly magnanimous, and yet he is denounced as seeking their murder or banishment, or the confiscation of their property.

—Mr. GREELEY is the author of the above just remarks. They appeared in the Tribune Aug. 7, 1868. Mr. GREELEY was not at that time the Democratic candidate—did he utter a falsehood then, or is he guilty of one now?

The Albany Evening Journal recently stated that GEORGE N. SANDERS had accompanied Mr. GREELEY to Dr. CHAPIN's church on the last Sunday on which that place of worship remained open. The statement having been vouched for by two members of Dr. CHAPIN's congregation, was copied into these columns. Mr. GREELEY now explicitly denies that GEORGE N. SANDERS ever accompanied him to "any church, chapel or conventicle whatever." From this categorical denial, it may be assumed that Mr. GREELEY does not think SANDERS a very creditable companion to accompany him to a place of worship. A number of Dr. CHAPIN's congregation were certainly under the impression that GEO. N. SANDERS and THOS. TILTON shared Mr. GREELEY's pew on the Sunday in question. Whatever may be said about the story, it is beyond all question that the disputable Confederate negotiator was an invited guest of Mr. GREELEY at Chappaqua on Saturday, July 13. His name appears in the list of those present given by the World and Herald and is duly recorded among the "notabilities" given in the Tribune of July 15. We leave it to Mr. GREELEY to determine whether it is more creditable to have invited such a man to his house, or to have accompanied him to church. In the latter case, we might have supposed that the philosopher was animated by a sincere desire to improve the morals of his friend and supporter. At Chappaqua, he would have little chance of moral improvement, more especially if Mr. GREELEY's Indian policy was under discussion. Mr. SANDERS did not accompany Mr. GREELEY to church; but he was a guest at Mr. GREELEY's farm. If it was disgraceful to take SANDERS to church, was it less disgraceful on Mr. GREELEY's part to receive him at Chappaqua?

In the speech, published in another place, delivered at Raleigh, N. C., by Secretary DELANO, some valuable and interesting statements are given concerning the results of Gen. GRANT's Indian policy. Eighty thousand—or more than half—of the Indians now on reservations have been brought under control since the opening of Gen. GRANT's term. Only fifty thousand remain out. Explicit details of the cost of the Indian policy are also given, which tell very powerfully in favor of its economy as well as of its efficiency.

When Senator FERRY was re-elected, the Greeley organ hailed it as a sign of the triumph of "Liberal principles." Senator FERRY, however, soon showed that he was too sensible a man to sacrifice his reputation and political prospects to a temporary craze. He wrote a letter in which he described the Greeley movement as "mere Midsummer madness." In another letter, dated July 20, 1872, he says:

"I support the Grant and Wilson ticket. Before it was made I had expressed my opinion to Mr. GREELEY as a candidate. I have not changed it. By November it will be found that the opinion of the country has settled in the same direction. Make your mind easy about Connecticut. The State will give to Gen. GRANT, under present circumstances, a larger majority than it did four years ago."

It appears, then, that "Liberal principles" have not an upward tendency in the market.

The libellous and venal sheet which has originated most of the slanders against President GRANT, has been obliged to take back its oft-reiterated story about Mr. THOMAS MURPHY's presentation of the cottage at Long Branch. It takes occasion, however, in sneaking out of the responsibility for the original lie, to manufacture another. It says that a fund of $35,000 was subscribed by seven gentlemen—Mr. MURPHY among the number—and placed to Gen. GRANT's credit in bank, and that this was drawn out to pay for the cottage. It will not surprise anybody to learn that every detail of this amended slander is as false as its predecessor was. We don't know which is the most disgusting, the cowardly insolence of the fellow who manufactures these things, or the readiness displayed by men claiming to be respectable to copy and circulate such miserable trash.

Today's receipts on behalf of the Children's Fund amount to $508 05. If any argument were needed to demonstrate how great is the want which the fund is designed to supply, it may be found in a report read at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Health. From this it appears that, of the 918 deaths which took place last week, 645—or seventy per cent. of the whole—were those of children under five years of age. Even this high figure exhibited a considerable decrease as compared with that of the previous week. It will be our duty to continue to assist in making this weekly improvement still more manifest.

The Rebel Archives—Unwelcome Revelations.

We publish this morning the report of JACOB THOMPSON, one of the rebel agents in Canada, to his principals. In anticipation of its publication, Mr. GREELEY's organ was yesterday violently agitated.

"It is intended," it cries, "to open the old sore again; we are to have the city burning, the well-poisoning, and the contagion-spreading business all retold, for fear people might forget there had been a war, and make up their minds to live at peace with their countrymen. Is this worth while? Must these dead-and-gone quarrels be revived everlastingly that demagogues may shrive?"

To which we answer: It is worth while. So long as the men who began these "dead-and-gone quarrels," and the party that helped to sustain them, with a journalist who was on both sides of them, are conspiring to seize the Government, the shameful record must be recalled. The truth is just to all, and here is the truth in its plainest, most indubitable form. Mr. GREELEY does not like it. We do not wonder at it. Nor will the American people read without deep sadness, mingling with their indignation, the evidence that, in the darkest hour of the war their worst foes were within their own borders, while vacillation, cowardice and vanity were making the editor of one of their greatest journals the practical ally of rebellion.

Premising that there is not the slightest shadow of a doubt as to the authenticity of the report as we publish it—it being printed from a photographic copy of the original document—what may our readers learn from it?

They may learn, that during the year 1864, and especially the latter half of it, the rebel Government was straining every nerve to carry the war into the North; that in pursuance of this purpose it sent secret agents, of whom C. C. CLAY and JACOB THOMPSON were two, (GEORGE N. SANDERS was a third,) into Canada, with authority to employ assistants, and with money to pay them; that from their hiding-place across the border, these agents put themselves in connection with friendly parties in the North, and matured various projects for the advancement of their ends.

Who were these parties, and what were these projects? The record shows.

Among the former were the leaders of a secret society called "The Sons of Liberty," "Its objects," says THOMPSON, "were political, its organization was essentially military." It need not be added that the "political objects," aimed at by the "Sons of Liberty" were the success of the Democracy, and consequent surrender to rebellion. But these were not pursued by political means alone. An armed insurrection was planned to seize Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, while the rebels should advance upon Kentucky and Missouri. "The first interruption" to this plan, says THOMPSON, "was the postponement of the meeting of the Democratic Convention from July 4 to 29th August." It seems that the Convention was an essential element in the insurrection. It was concluded to wait and see if the Democrats did not win a rebel victory in the election, or, as Mr. THOMPSON puts it, it was argued "that the trial of the ballot-box should be made before a resort to force—always a dernier resort." The rebel agents acceded to this indirect way of gaining their ends.

They were encouraged in doing so by an unforeseen event which told powerfully in their behalf. In July, 1864, or shortly before, HORACE GREELEY wrote a letter to one "Colorado" JEWETT, an adventurer, and an old friend of GREELEY's, on the subject of peace. What Mr. GREELEY should have taken upon himself to discuss that subject with an associate of the rebel agents at the time in their company in Canada, it is difficult to say.

However that may be, Mr. GREELEY, by misstating to the President the authority of the rebel agents, and by withholding from the agents portions of the instructions of the President which he was explicitly directed to make known to them, managed to place Mr. LINCOLN in the position of refusing to consider terms of peace after they had been solicited by him. This advantage over the President was influential in inducing the rebel agents to await "the trial of the ballot-box." They believed the "country shocked," and they received assurances from their friends among the politicians that "on such an issue LINCOLN could be beaten."

Meantime, however, arms were purchased and stored. Some of these in Indiana were seized. The Democratic candidate for Governor, fearing his election was endangered, "threatened to expose all the parties engaged unless the project was abandoned." It seems that Democratic candidates were in as close intimacy with rebel plans then as now.

By the time the Democratic Convention was held it was deemed reasonable to make another move in the game which was to give the Government of the country to the country's enemies. Accordingly on the 3d of September, Mr. GREELEY again entered the field, this time with a letter calculated to secure the withdrawal of LINCOLN from the canvass, the substitution of another candidate, the division and diversion of Republican strength, and the success of the rebellion in that "trial at the ballot-box," so anxiously watched in the South and over the Canadian border. The letter was addressed to each of the loyal Governors, and was as follows:

NEW-YORK, Sept. 3, 1864.

Hon.——:

YOUR EXCELLENCY: The undersigned have been requested by a body of influential Unionists to communicate with the loyal Governors for the purpose of eliciting replies to the following queries:

1. In your judgment is the re-election of Mr. LINCOLN a probability?

2. In your judgment can your own State be carried for Mr. LINCOLN?

3. In your judgment do the interests of the Union party, and so of the country, require the substitution of another candidate in place of Mr. Lincoln?

In making these queries we give no opinion of our own, and request yours only for the most private and confidential use. Yours truly,

HORACE GREELEY,
Editor of the Tribune (and two others.)

To this insidious appeal GREELEY received answers from the loyal Governors which quenched, for the time being, his ardor in the direction of President-making.

These are some of the matters to be learned from the report of the rebel agent, and from a comparison of it with cotemporaneous history, we leave all candid men to draw their own conclusions as to its bearing on the present canvass, and Mr. GREELEY's unwillingness to have it see the light. It is not to be denied that while THOMPSON, SANDERS and their companions were plotting to put the torch to Northern homes, HORACE GREELEY sought them, under false pretenses, spoke in deceptive terms of "peace," and withdrew, leaving the brave and noble LINCOLN in a false position before the country. From that position Mr. GREELEY could have released the President, but refused to do so. It is not to be denied that in the subsequent canvass he made a covert and hateful attack on Mr. LINCOLN as a candidate, which, had it succeeded, would have been an immense advantage to the rebels. Nor is it to be denied that he is to be found today side by side with the rebel officials of 1864, entertaining SANDERS at his home, supported unanimously by the incendiaries then in their employ, and the candidate of the party whose success was justly regarded as fully equivalent to a rebel victory.

"Reapers from the Reapersnest."

It must surely be a great thing for the Democratic candidate that he should have the support of so pure and disinterested an advocate as the New-York World. None ought better to know the value of respect from the respected than the whilom member of the firm of SEWARD, WEED & Co., and the present associate of JOHN MORRISSEY and GEORGE N. SANDERS. A journal that has gained a national reputation for lofty consistency and inflexible steadfastness of purpose, should be able to do yeoman's service for a candidate whose characteristics are so closely in union with those qualities. When, therefore, Mr. GREELEY read in his yesterday's World, "We shall give Mr. GREELEY an earnest but discriminating support throughout the canvass," and "We confidently expect his election," together with such cheering implications as "Of course, Mr. GREELEY will use his own sound discretion in selecting Secretary of the Cabinet," the "Liberal Republican" candidate must have been very much encouraged.

It is true that, as recalls the last indulgent hypothesis, Messrs. LYMAN GARRISONS and HORATIO SEYMOUR may have a word or two to say, even were WADE HAMPTON and REUBEN E. FENTON good enough to hold their peace. Still the kind permission of the World must go far toward settling the point, and there can be no doubt of the solid truth of its prognostication that the point will really arise to be settled. If, however, Mr. GREELEY has any misgivings on the subject, we commend to his attention the first article in the World of June 4th ult., headed "The Cowardice and Folly of a Surrender to GREELEY," and in which a column and a half of elaborate reasoning winds up with the statement that "It is a mathematical certainty that the indorsement of GREELEY at Baltimore will secure GRANT a second term." Entertaining that conviction, it is not surprising that the World should declare, in the same article, that "Assuredly no such egregious folly will be perpetrated;" and by this its readers, including Mr. GREELEY, may estimate the monetary value of its predictions. It is not easy, in this hot weather, to think of many things at once more refreshing and more reassuring.

Another passage in the same article we are constrained to offer for the serious consideration of our Democratic friends, whether they have made up their minds to bolt the nauseous "Greeley Pill" or not. Here it is: "The indorsement of the Cincinnati ticket at Baltimore would be the road to an ignominious defeat, wherein the Democratic Party WOULD NOT ONLY LOSE THE ELECTION, BUT SACRIFICE ITS PRINCIPLES AND SWAMP ITS VERY EXISTENCE." Thus we find that the World not only looks forward with confidence to the negation of a mathematical certainty, but hopes to triumph gloriously in an ignominious defeat. This almost equals the "Magnificent Victory of Gen. LEE" placarded in Richmond by Mr. GREELEY's friends after the battle of Gettysburg. Verily, what with the articles World, the brilliant Professors and prospectuses of the Tribune, and the "vermifuge" satirists of the Sun, the "Liberal Republican" candidate has strong backing. His "indorsement" at Baltimore has certainly, in the World's sense, been the "road" to as much folly, duplicating, and structure logic as befits even its own intrinsic ridiculousness. It to afford food for irrepressible and contemptuous laughter to all intelligent people is also the way to make Mr. GREELEY's "indorsement" a "road" to the White House, he cannot reproach his friends with failing to do their duty.

"Our National Game."

The pastime known as base-ball is generally understood to be our national game, and most accounts of the various contests in which nine men, hired for the purpose, endeavor to beat nine other men hired for the purpose, and so win money and fame for their employers, are headed with this attractive and imposing title. Without going so far as that enthusiastic Western editor, who ranked base-ball among the honorable careers, it may be admitted to have substantial merits claiming the recognition of all lovers of manly sports. It cultivates in no common degree, activity, decision, and hardihood—qualities that any people may be glad to see developed in its youth. Modern base-ball may claim, too, a certain sort of science, which may be supposed to lend to the pastime just that kind of mental stimulus necessary to inspire and complement physical exertion. There seems to be an unnecessary risk of broken bones in its practice. But, on the other hand, there is some risk in all the exercises of the gymnasium, and the danger is ever a fresh provocation to courage. The veteran base-ball player, in contemplating his fractured fingers or his battered countenance, may feel the same sort of pride which animated the wrestlers in the Olympic games, who would suffer all their limbs to be broken rather than surrender.

So, everything considered, we are perfectly willing to accept base-ball as our national game. Only at present it is nothing of the sort. It is a profession, a trade, a "career," more or less honorable, for more or less industrious and deserving young men. To hundreds of such all over the country it affords at this moment an honest, if not a very creditable, livelihood. But a national game it cannot be called, certainly not in the sense in which cricket is clearly the national game of England. The best notion of the comparative status of the two games in either country is derived from a glance at the sort of people who play them. The social position or value of a man who can deliberately resign himself to earn his living by playing base-ball is self-evident. Yet it is such men who are our very best base-ball players, and no field of amateurs could, in the long run, compete with even a second-rate professional nine. But in England the other day, at cricket, a picked crew of gentlemen players beat a picked crew of professionals, and beat them rather badly. The men who made a sport of the pastime, beat the men who made it a business. And the inference is obvious that in England cricket is so wedded to the popular affections, so constantly practiced by all classes of the people for love, and not for gain, as almost to neutralize the undoubted advantages of the professional player.

Or take another instance: On the 12th inst., nearly twenty-five thousand people, representing the best classes of English society, assembled at Lord's, (a well-known cricket ground,) to see the annual match between Eton and Harrow. The only parallel event with this is a base-ball match between Yale and Harvard. Could twenty-five thousand of our best people be brought together to look at that? And the reason here for the difference again is plain. Cricket is still in England, as it has always been, the pastime of gentlemen, not a professional plaything. At only An Incident. Base-ball, on the contrary, has become entirely professional, and correspondingly disreputable. Jockeying and trickery and vulgar chicanery of all sorts, have made its very name stink in the nostrils of all decent people. Its significance, and until it is exposed from the sharpers who make it their profit, it is simply ridiculous to style it a national pastime. Its fate is to be regretted, as is the failure of any stimulus to physical activity and development. But the fact is plain. Base-ball, so far as it can claim to be a typical American institution at all, is simply a contrivance for gambling that most honest men would cheerfully see suppressed.

Odds and Ends.

In Mr. GREELEY's organ many strange things appear now-a-days. Sometimes it finds out that we have been in collusion with several queer persons to obtain offices from the Administration; but when it is called upon for proof, it instantly collapses. Sometimes it boasts of its independence, as set forth in its publication of speeches delivered against its candidate. Yesterday, for instance, it took great credit to itself for publishing Senator CONKLING's speech, and "crowed" over us for not publishing Senator SCHURZ's attack on the President. The simple truth about that matter is that we furnished the Tribune, through the Associated Press, with printed slips of Senator CONKLING's address, and that it did not extend the same courtesy to us in reference to Mr. SCHURZ's lecture. Had it been as civil to us as we were to it, Mr. SCHURZ's speech would have appeared in full in these columns. The Professor is frequently in the habit of sending to us to borrow news, and then boasting of his enterprise on the strength of what we freely give him. Such is "journalistic" life.

Again: Senator SCHURZ utters a calumny concerning the President, which is forthwith exploded. Does the Tribune admit that a reply has been made? No; it simply says that the President is evidently "tender" on the subject of San Domingo. Had he not replied to the accusation, he would have been pronounced guilty; he authorized a denial, and he is called sensitive. Such is the Greeleyan notion of justice.

Still further: Mr. GREELEY seeks to render Gen. GRANT responsible for measures passed by Congress which GREELEY himself had passionately recommended. What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. Gen. BUTLER said recently that if Mr. GREELEY were elected we should "find ourselves drawn into a vortex, and voting to repay the losses of the South, and to pension Confederate soldiers." Thus taxed, Mr. GREELEY replies that as President he would have no power to initiate measures. They "must be considered in the Congress district" (Tribune, Monday) reference to the Congressional Districts being the great specific for all our woes since the Cincinnati Convention. It is, of course, something new to have questions tested in that way. Observe the distinction: President GRANT is responsible for all acts of the Legislative; President GREELEY would only be responsible for what he signed or what he vetoed. This argument is good enough for the party which has adopted GREELEY—what does it matter that it violates sense and justice?

Here, finally, are some plain questions for the Tribune, which it has hitherto refused to answer, and which it will probably once more evade. If it does, the public will simply have one more example of the "elevated" kind of journalism which the Professor holds up to imitation as "his way."

Where are the proofs of the reckless libel that the TIMES was in "collusion" with anybody "to find places in the Custom-house, Navy-yard and United States Courts" for any individual or class of persons whatever?

In what respect are the charges of the TIMES against Sheriff BRENNAN either "false" or "slanderous," and what considerations induced the Tribune to make so grossly dishonest a defense of a corrupt public official?

Has not Gov. HOFFMAN been convicted, on the evidence of City records, of having betrayed public trust while acting as Mayor of New-York? If so, what motive deters the Tribune from branding him as he deserves? Further, has there been any reason to alter the opinion given in Mr. GREELEY's paper of July 17, 1871: "The bloodshed of the 12th stains the hands of the Governor, and cannot be washed out!"

Did not Mr. GREELEY in October, 1871, profess his willingness to become the Democratic candidate for the Presidency, if the nomination were offered him?

Previous to this declaration, had not Mr. GREELEY expressed himself favorable to the passage of a law providing "that the General Government should pay pensions to disabled rebel soldiers?"

The Professor need not attempt to wriggle out of the responsibility of a direct answer to these questions, under cover of a cloud of words without meaning. If he has forgotten the use of plain Saxon monosyllables, he can ask Mr. GREELEY in the intervals between his slumbers at "headquarters" to write an intelligible series of answers for him. All that we ask is that there should be no pretense of replying to charges that were never made, in order to delude people into the opinion that those which have been made, are really met.

MINOR TOPICS.

The fact should not be lost sight of that Mr. GREELEY's formal letter of acceptance to the Committee of the Baltimore Convention is addressed exclusively to the South, and to the secessionists of the South at that. The only claim to any one's support set up by Mr. GREELEY in his desire that the restrictions on amnesty be absolutely removed, i. e., he pledges himself to the policy of reopening JEFF DAVIS in the United States Senate.

There was a passage in a recent letter of our correspondent in North Carolina which we hope was not overlooked. At any rate, it is worth reading again, and here it is:

"This is the chief truth, the leading characteristic of the contest in North Carolina which cannot be disputed, and which it is incumbent upon every patriot to remember. There is not a Democrat in North Carolina, who voted war against the Union, who opposed secession and ultra-Rebelism, who was a member of the Kuklux Klan, who is not for GREELEY; there is scarcely a black in North Carolina, not one of his white Unionists who is not for GRANT. Everything else is merely incidental to this one fact. Everything else, even the Kuklux outrages, even the murders of Wyatt and Stephens, even the Kuklux Conspiracy, even the Kuklux Conspiracy, even the murders of Wyatt and Stephens, even the outrages of the Kuklux, even the Kuklux Klan, even the Kuklux, even the Kuklux, even the Kuklux

RALEIGH, N. C., July 20.—A large mass-meeting of Republicans was held in this city today, at which Samuel F. Phillips, Esq., presided, and which was addressed by Hon. Columbus Delano, Secretary of the Interior, and Senator Pool, of North Carolina. The speaking was from a stand which was erected in a grove, and which was handsomely decorated with flags, portraits of Grant and Wilson, and patriotic mottoes. While a majority of the audience was colored, there were many whites present, among whom were some prominent Democrats, who listened attentively to Secretary Delano throughout. The speaker made a very favorable impression, and there is every reason to believe that his speech will have a good effect upon the canvass. Following is his address:

MR. DELANO'S SPEECH.

In the remarks which I shall make I propose to examine the history and condition of the Republican Party, and consider the claims of the Administration to your approval and support. Not only in North Carolina, but throughout the country, there are new combinations in politics proposed, founded on the most unwarrantable charges against the Republican Party and its administration of public affairs. Into the correctness of these charges I propose to inquire, that it may be seen how far they are justified upon official inquiry, and how far sustained by the public experience of the last twelve years.

An extensive combination of disappointed politicians has joined its political fortunes to that of the Democratic Party, and under the specious cry of "Reform"—the last resort of disarmed demagogues—they propose by a vain enterprise of overthrowing the Republican Party. You are told, in vague and general terms, that the Administration is corrupt; that to reform it the Republican Party organization should be abandoned; that Liberal Republicans and Free-trade Democrats should combine to defeat the Republican candidates and elect one whose name, history and fortunes have been that of party, and partisan only.

I desire to examine into the correctness and sincerity of this combination—whether it robes for support upon its professed principles of reform, or whether it is not a coalition with direct influences of the party which, for party purposes and for public plunder.

The first great political organization in this country was that Republican Party which demanded American nationality, and which gave to us the Constitution and Union; made us one people, "ordained" not a nation, and cleansed from the country the stains of slavery, the armies of the Republic through the war for independence. During that struggle in the midst of the anxiety and untiring efforts of our fathers to preserve and bear aloft the great principles of constitutional liberty, there were still found some to cry out against party and for party reform. That clamor, however, was frowned down with indignation and scorn by every republican heart in the land, and it deserves no other fate today. This feeling was as strong during the period of the first American decade as to lead to the unwise enactments of the Sedition laws by Congress, and misguided policy, as was shown in the aphorism of Jefferson, that "Error must be tolerated if truth was left free to combat it."

Let me inquire what is party? Is it a catchword used to delude, deceive, and impose upon the honest people of the land? or is it something that is significant of principle and stability; which commends itself to the intelligence and integrity of the country? The Republican Party of today is an association of citizens extending through every state, and reaching every election district in the land. Men thereby act in concert to carry out great fundamental principles in the administration of government. Men of a like faith and purpose thus voluntarily unite in their political efforts for the purpose of placing and sustaining in the responsible offices of the people those of their fellow-citizens whose principles accord with their own. Thus the public affairs of the nation are administered upon such republican principles as, in their judgment, will best promote the welfare and prosperity of the whole country. Ours is strictly a representative Government, and therefore, it consists whenever as nearly as the people's will can be ascertained on any subject, with the restrictions and limitations of the Constitution and laws. It is not only right and proper, but absolutely necessary for the preservation of American interests, therefore, that the most convenient plan be practiced to enforce the popular will and signify its behest to the Government. Hence the necessity that it be collected through and by the organization of political parties, for, however just and correct the opinions of all the people of North Carolina might be, they would avail nothing unless the people were allowed to manifest them in the direct voice of their representatives in Congress. Without a large majority of the people at this State are opposed to the issue of an irredeemable quantity of paper money, or an increase of the public debt, unless they shall see to it, in a public capacity, that their representatives, when elected to Congress, will faithfully reflect their opinions on those subjects. Not only the party by the united efforts of all, those who are in accord upon great cardinal principles, and this is the work of party. It enables the people to declare their will in a practical form, and compels a compliance with it on the part of their agents. It secures the beneficent theory of the Government in practical form, and makes laws and action have effect to the end that it is what it ought to be and what it was intended to be—a Government of the people and for the people.

The present effort to break down party organization, under the delusive cry of corruption on the one hand and reform on the other, is a blow at the foundation of the entire political system. It strikes at the fundamental principle of our Government, and goes to paralyze the arm and hush the voice of the people by relieving their representatives from party responsibility. Should this new combination of experimenting Republicans and reconstructed Democrats succeed in its effort to destroy existing parties, and upon their ruins raise up a new party headed by Horace Greeley for the Presidency, are you to take his past history and record as indicating the policy of his Administration? This question presents itself to the serious consideration of Democrats as well as Republicans; of the South as well as the North, and of every material interest in the land. While the most consistent leaders of the Democratic Party have from the first opposed his election, opposed his indorsement and nomination in Baltimore, it is that class of adventurers, soldiers of fortune, and politicians out of office, independent of all popular authority, and led by the financial "wildcat" vagary, which has finally taken him before the people as a Presidential candidate. Such action alone as that of the late Cincinnati gathering would bring the popular system of nominations into contempt, and that of party conventions into derision.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

The Republican Party, from the first, was a constitutional organization springing quickly into existence after the repeal of the Missouri Compromise. Its main purpose was to prevent the spread of slavery into the Territories, and to lead on toward its ultimate extinction. It is not my intention to repeat the history of the rise and fall of slavery, or to call in review the enormities of that system. These have, happily, passed away. The most concise and condensed statement of wrongs, which Government ever fulminated or the depravity of man ever invented, is claimed to have had its origin in war; and, true to its natural instincts for a little temporizing and a little more power, it drew the sword, made war on the American Republic, and perished by the sword. In that day four millions of freemen were added to the United States. Depending on the issues of that great war were many weighty considerations. War destroyed all civil government in the rebel States. The tenure of property was shaken and lost; poverty overtook the wealthy and powerful; many persons lived, were married, and general disorder was extensively scattered. But in compensation for these great evils you have gained freedom and unity for the State. No complaint can now be lodged at the bar of Eternal Justice against the enormity of American slavery. This work has been accomplished by the Republican Party.

Following hard on the heels of secession came the Rebellion. It was to have opened earth to come, it was supposed by rebellion, made so to recast order and government out of chaos and confusion resulting from the war. The Union was now overwhelmed in the right of secession, and the Republic was to be broken up. That was for less by act of secession than of public safety. The colored man had been declared forever free, and, if freedom meant anything it meant that he should stand equal before the law and have a voice in legislation. Recognizing this fundamental principle, Congress reconstructed the Southern States accordingly.

The Democratic Party, not relishing this condition, again rebelled. Its leaders in Congress and its newspapers. Press denounced these acts as unconstitutional. An open war on the part of the opposition party found impracticable.

THE KU-KLUX.

Remedy was next resorted to. That organization obtained and spread to fourteen counties of your own State, and to a great extent in five neighboring States. In the fourteen counties the civil laws were forbidden, and administered. Six whole counties in Republican. But the avenging arm of the General Government has been laid, not too heavily, upon this last Democratic enormity. The records of your Federal Courts bear witness to the barbarity and treason of the Ku-klux-klans, and the convicted felons who have gone up from North Carolina and the neighboring States to expiate their crimes in the penitentiary, are living monuments of the cruelty and treason latent in the Democratic Party.

There are still other deeds which have been accomplished by the Republican Party to which I must invite your attention. It has given guarantees for the faithful payment of the public debt. It has provided pensions for the crippled and disabled soldiers who shed luster upon America by their heroism in defending the Union. It has provided pensions for the orphans of those who sacrificed their lives in the same cause, and for the widows who are compelled to pour out bitter tears upon the graves of their husbands who laid down their lives for their country. These sacred pledges of a nation's gratitude will never be withdrawn while the widow and the orphan have sympathy for them. This glorious work of the Republican Party you are good or. Is it time for you now to desert that party? Can any honest man justly himself in such desertion?

There is yet other work accomplished by this great party to which I must allude. It has provided against the payment of the debt contracted by the rebel States in their efforts to destroy the Union. It has freed, not by the former masters but emancipated slaves. It fell that those who secreted emancipation by attempting to destroy the Union lost all rights in equity to any compensation by such emancipation, and is had determined to stand upon these great ideas and great principles under all circumstances, and in every emergency. This work will live in history. It will be vouchsafed by those who come after us; and if any hand is now or shall hereafter be raised to undo this work, to nullify it, or impair its obligation and validity, the execrations of all good men will be hurled out to him who raises such hand, now and in all time to come.

All this great and noble work has been accomplished under the constant and persistent opposition of the Democratic Party; but in the midst of this warfare the Republican Party has made its way onward in its righteous work. In petitions to Congress it has sought to enforce the laws, bring the guilty to punishment, do justice to the oppressed, and deal rightly with all.

RESULTS OF REPUBLICAN POLICY.

I now come to inquire what results have been accomplished by Gen. Grant's Administration which are to be placed to the credit of the Republican Party. All the great questions which were raised by the war have been settled. Emancipation, reconstruction, impartial suffrage, general amnesty, and civil service reform, have all been secured, either by constitutional amendment or by provisions of law. Important and threatening differences with foreign nations have been settled by treaty, and are now in process of amicable adjustment, and a new and important principle has been introduced into International Law, which promises to settle differences between foreign nations upon the principle of arbitration, which, it is believed, will secure the Government against the recurrence of war in the future with foreign nations, and lead greatly to advance the civilization, peace and happiness of the world. Important laws have been passed by Congress in General. All parties propose to acquiesce in these results. No considerable faction is any State today continues openly to agitate for the overthrow of these measures or dispute the justice and wisdom of the Republican policy.

The principal and great remaining questions in this country are commercial and economical. They relate to the material interests of the country; interests which have undergone fearful suffering during the war, which have carried an enormous national debt to support the war, and which have since wonderfully survived under the stimulating influence of a system of revenue the strong foundation to all that we can boast of material and social developments. While the Administration has been assailed by extreme theorists in various selfish interests, its action has been guided by principles which command the respect of candid men. It has endeavored to lighten the burdens of taxation impartially, as fast as the interests of the Government would permit on the one hand; on the other, without exposing vested interests and that of labor and capital to sudden and disastrous changes. In this moderate course the Administration has conferred more general benefits upon the country than if it had pushed into extensive reductions or to have obnoxiously favored powerful commercial interests.

It has been the policy of the Administration to pay the public debt as specifically as possible. The marvels which have been accomplished in this respect are known to every intelligent man. They are printed in thousands of newspapers, proclaimed from hundreds of rostrums, and are familiar to all. The $350,976,916 39 of the public debt were paid from March 4, 1869, to July 1, 1872, being upward of $100,000,000 per annum, or eight and a half millions per month; that the annual interest charge has been reduced to the extent of $22,401,087; annually—these facts are known to you, and ought to excite no other emotion than that of a generous confidence in the integrity and ability of the Administration.

FINANCIAL.

This extinguishment of the public debt has been effected under, so to speak, a heavy simultaneous reduction of taxation made by the Republican Party. At the termination of the war the Republican Party accomplished its first reduction of taxation, and it has pursued this policy as fast as was consistent with the public credit and the necessary annual expenses of the Government.

By acts of Congress, approved July 13, 1866, March 2, 1867, February 5, 1868, and March 31, 1868, reductions were made in taxation which amount to $214,000,000 in the three years of this Administration, had the taxes been continued, $380,450,000, and for these facts there is the record from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Finding it practicable to still further reduce taxation, Congress, by acts approved July 4, 1870, and July 14, 1870, reduced from the excise tax to the extent of $75,651,000 per annum; and by the acts of July 4, 1870, May 1 and June 6, 1872, tariff duties were reduced to the extent of $34,809,000 per annum, and for this I refer to the acts of Congress before mentioned, and the estimate and statements of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Thus showing a total reduction of taxes yearly of $130,460,000 during the three years of Gen. Grant's Administration. It, in the face of these reductions, it be asked how the Republican Party has been able to extinguish so much of the public debt, I answer, by an efficient and faithful administration of the Revenue laws and by an honest application of the money collected; and here I give the facts to prove this assertion. Let them be understood and remembered.

The total receipts from spirits, tobacco, fermented liquors, banks and bankers, gas, adhesive stamps, and penalties, from March 1, 1869, to Feb. 28, 1872, were $320,000,000. This you will observe, was during the first three years of Gen. Grant's Administration.

Now look at the total receipts from the same articles from March 1, 1866, to Feb. 28, 1869, being the last three years of Mr. Johnson's Administration. They were $381,183,714, showing a gain in favor of this Administration, in the three years, of $103,209,630, being at the rate of forty-seven per cent. for the three years, and making an average increase, from the same source, of over thirty-six million dollars annually. The illustration I give in regard to collections on the enumerated articles, and assert that it may be safely set up as applicable to the entire field of revenue collections and taxation. It furnishes a clear and satisfactory reason for the ability of the Administration to reduce the public debt in the face of excessive reduction of taxation, and it ought to convince all candid men of the danger of disorganizing or abandoning the Republican Party for the purpose of experimenting with a party composed of dissatisfied Republicans and clamorous Democrats.

By the same acts of Congress to which I have last referred, duties were wholly removed from tea and coffee, and from many other articles of general consumption and manufacturing. While the excess was limited to spirits, ferment of liquors, tobacco, banking, patent medicines, and stamps upon checks.

That you will see that direct taxation has been virtually abandoned. The tax-gatherer shall enter your dwellings no more, and the only revenue Congress and the country had for this sweeping reduction and repeal was the public confidence in the financial skill, integrity, and ability of the present Administration.

The foremost journal of Europe, the representative of the British nation and the British debt, which formerly spoke in disparaging terms of American credit, and was never very friendly to American interests, has expressed astonishment at what we have accomplished, and has frankly admitted that the nation in Europe could have borne the like burdens upon her resources without the most serious embarrassments.

The credit of the country has improved in a degree most satisfactory to every patriotic mind; the price of American securities has constantly advanced; the appreciation of our paper money is marked by the fall of gold from $1 43 in 1869 to $1 19 and $1 12 in 1872.

All the expenses of the present Administration the securities of the United States were below the par value of gold from fifteen to seventeen per cent., and today we dare boast that American securities are equal in value to gold. These and like considerations it is that have enabled the Government already to place in a gradual execution at a greatly reduced rate of interest and the same cause, if continued, will enable us to call in the bonds of our six per cent. loan and place it at a rate of interest from four to five per cent. Upon this subject I refer to a speech delivered in the House of Representatives, Hon. Mr. Brooks, of New-York, a member of the Committee of Ways and Means, delivered in the House February 19, 1872. Mr. Brooks said:

"No voice on this, or on the other side of the House, was raised against appropriations all are for the faithful discharge of the public debt. The action of Congress has thus far fully justified the credit to an enviable position throughout the whole world. Just before the close of the war our Government was paying the money at its value, or gold. After the peace, the rate of interest rapidly fell to seven per cent. In 1868 it had fallen per cent.; in 1870, to five and a half per cent., and before the end of 1871, it fell to a small fraction more than five per cent. The interest upon the public debt has fallen from seven to five per cent. Upon this subject I refer to a speech delivered in the House of Representatives, Hon. Mr. Brooks, of New-York, a member of the Committee of Ways and Means, delivered in the House February 19, 1872. Mr. Brooks said:

"No voice on this, or on the other side of the House, was raised against appropriations all are for the faithful discharge of the public debt. The action of Congress has thus far fully justified the credit to an enviable position throughout the whole world. Just before the close of the war our Government was paying the money at its value, or gold. After the peace, the rate of interest rapidly fell to seven per cent. In 1868 it had fallen per cent.; in 1870, to five and a half per cent., and before the end of 1871, it fell to a small fraction more than five per cent. The interest upon the public debt has fallen from seven to five per cent. I am in that House two years ago, when the Funding bill was discussed here, and when I supported the action of the Committee of Ways and Means in spite of some battery aimed against my position in this sort. He (Mr. Brooks) is the projector of bonding that measure. I said then, that, in my judgment, such was the rising credit of this country that there would be no difficulty hereafter in negotiating the remaining three-fourths of the whole debt of this country at the rate of four per cent. per annum."

What Congress was this that "lifted the public credit to an enviable position throughout the whole world?" The Republican Congress which came in with the present Administration. And under what circumstances had the public credit been lifted up and the public debt been reduced? Under the facts stated, of the repeal of revenue equal to a hundred millions of dollars annually. But this sum was more than regained by the faithful collection and honest application of the public revenues to the public liabilities by the public officers of Gen. Grant's Administration. Is there not both honor and glory in this? And this policy now fairly accomplished, the necessity for so rapid a reduction of the public indebtedness has become less important. It may hereafter be reduced at a much less rate—say fifty or twenty-five millions per annum, if you please—and thereby the people's burdens may be correspondingly reduced.

For myself I do not consider it desirable to extinguish hereafter the public debt too rapidly. I am for such taxation only as will meet a moderate reduction each year and defray the necessary expenses of the Government. I am willing our national resources should be tested by a long war that national credit may be conserved. Recently predicted to be an easy task, in the hands of honest agents, for this nation to preserve its faith and pay the public debt within twenty years. And during all this time the people will enjoy such physical comfort and prosperity as are allotted to no other nation on the globe. To this end, with a patriotic view to American industry and American labor, the Excise and Tariff laws have been reformed by the present Congress solely in the interests and welfare of the people.

I maintained that the record of this Administration in all the civil affairs of the nation has been pure, and bears its character and ability, and is as remarkable as the energy and fidelity of Gen. Grant during the war.

There is no mystery about Gen. Grant's capacity to administer public affairs. It is established in the fact that the Presidents in office around him with the Republican Party and the Republican Party is in close sympathy with the masses of the people. Even those who have heretofore voted against his Administration include many thousands who believe in its integrity and trustworthiness, and who fear the hazard of a change. The success of Gen. Grant in his civil administration may be accounted for by the same reasons that account for his military victories. It is because his fidelity, integrity, and patriotism deserve success.

INDIAN POLICY.

I feel compelled in these remarks to refer briefly to what is known as the Indian policy of the present Administration.

It is not denied, nor has there ever been on the part of the Government any effort to conceal the fact, that there are occasional acts of murder, robbery, and murder by the Indians. These have been most frequent in Arizona and on the Texas frontier, but they have often been provoked and increased by the cruel and wicked conduct of bad white men. These acts of outrage have not been committed by organized tribes, nations, or bands of Indians, but on the contrary, by individual or associated Indians, acting against the wishes of their nation or tribe, and not under tribal authority. The fact is there are bad Indians as well as bad white men; and if, under our civilization, it is impossible always to suppress, or even punish, robbery, theft, murder and other crimes, is it wonderful if, amid conditions, are more frequently committed and seldom punished among the savages?

I am not prepared with figures for an accurate comparison, but I venture to say that the proportion of lawless violence, resulting in danger to life and property, is much greater in the Cherokee Nation of Indians, than in any or all of the Indian tribes, and that a greater portion of these criminals go unpunished in that City than among the Indians. I feel quite sure that the same remark would be correct if made of several other cities, or, indeed, of many States in this Union.

Marking the evidences of the present Administration there has been an organized and systematic attack upon its Indian policy. The plan has been to misrepresent by denying that any good has been accomplished, and to exaggerate for sensational purposes every wrong committed by the Indians, and announce that if any Indian outrages had been committed, which inquiry had no foundation whatever in truth. Many of these statements have been suffered to pass sub silentio. Some have been corrected, others denied. It is too apparent, however, at the present moment, that this system is to be continued with increased vigor and audacity, for party and political purposes, to allow of longer silence. I have resolved, therefore, to expose these misrepresentations; and, in order to do so with the greatest accuracy, I have applied to the able and efficient Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Gen. F. A. Walker, for certain facts connected with the Indian service, which I am about to present. I shall put these facts against assertions—or, to speak more plainly, truth against falsehood—and then trust to the judgment of a candid and honest people for a righteous verdict.

Upon the authority before mentioned, I therefore assert that, during the present year, more than twenty-five thousand Indians have been added to the number of those placed under the control of the Government. During the three years of the present Administration, more than eleven thousand Indians have been transferred from the control of the military to that of the civil authorities and supervision of Indian agents. Not to exceed fifty thousand Indians are still roaming beyond the supervision of their agents, notwithstanding the immense extent of territory which yet intervenes between the settled portions of the country. It has become almost a certainty that in the coming year the great number of roaming Indians so far reduced that, substantially, the whole Indian race within the United States will be settled upon reservations. These reservations are located with reference to allowing the fullest development of railroad communications, the largest extension of the area of settlement, and the safety of white citizens. They are also located with the view of securing the best interests of the aboriginal population, and in order to afford the members of that unfortunate race opportunity to learn the arts and customs of civilized life, and I trust in the end to participate in the happy inheritance of the American people. Such a result would be well attained at any expense, for the free development of railroad communications and the extension of our settlements is of incalculable value merely from a pecuniary point of view.

Every year the advance of our frontier takes in a large extent of land, teeming with agriculture and mineral wealth, equal to the area of many of the largest States of the Union, or some of the most powerful empires in the world. To accomplish this without delay or embarrassment to the aborigines of the country, is one of the first duties of the present Administration, and this is being done under the humane and Christian policy of the Republican Administration, not only with strict justice to the Indians, but in the spirit of mercy and peace.

Of the 280,000 Indians within the limit of the United States, exclusive of Alaska, according to the last enumeration, about 70,000 form, 130,000 are now supporting themselves on their own lands, receiving absolutely nothing from the Government beyond the interest of their own money or annuities granted them in consideration of the cession of their lands. The lands which they have ceded have been sold by the Government for actual settlers at three, five, ten or twenty times the amount paid the Indians for them.

The aggregate cost of the subsistence of the 118,000 Indians at agencies, who are in whole or in part, often in a very small degree, subsisted by the Government, was for the past year, $8,444,000, including the excessively high charges for the transportation of supplies which prevail in those distant regions. The fact that this sum divided among 118,000 Indians, gives an average of only $71 50 per head, is sufficient evidence that large numbers of these Indians are already on the road to the condition when they shall be self-supporting, while others are learning the rudiments of the mechanical or agricultural arts.

Fifty or sixty agents, with a force of employes, carpenters, blacksmiths, farmers, millers and teachers, to the number in all of 900, are engaged in the work of instructing these people to break up their own lands, build their own fences and cabins, saw their own lumber, and grind their own corn, as well as to speak in our language and write in our alphabet.

The cost of so great an enterprise is necessarily heavy, but it is not unduly computed to the cost of a month of general Indian war. It must also be remembered that war necessarily interrupts the progress of railways as well as the settlement of our country, and renders insecure the lives of those who live on its frontier.

The total amount appropriated for the Indian service in the fiscal year ending July 1, 1872, including all deficiency appropriations, was $6,456,114 68. Of this sum, $1,327,997 68 was appropriated only in the sense that it gave the administrative officers of the Government authority to pay to, or expend in behalf the Indians, moneys belonging the tribes. These moneys were the proceeds of the cession of many a hundred million acres of land, now coveted by the farms and pastures of the cities of the whites.

Moreover, of the sum appropriated, considerable in excess of three hundred thousand dollars remained unexpended at the close of the year, reducing the actual expense of Indian agencies (service) below four and a half millions of dollars.

Single wars of the United States with single tribes of Indians have cost the Treasury ten, twenty, thirty and forty millions of dollars. The report of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs for the year 1871, relating to the Cheyenne war of 1868 and 1869, and the Cheyennes war of 1869 and 1870, cost the Government a million of dollars and the loss of twenty white men. This is the cost of fight with single tribes, and the worst of it is that they have never sued for peace, but the Indians still remain, either to be pacificated by force of arms, at such enormous expenditures of blood and treasure, or else to be pacified by conciliatory actions, was they are, humane, just to us by constant good offices, assisted to a condition of self-support, and in the end made one with the whites by mutual sympathy and by a common devotion to a common country and the same Heavenly Father.

Let those who, from lack of correct information, are incredulous; let those whose desire for punishment or revenge has been aroused by exaggerated accounts of Indian depredations; let those who wish to adopt a different policy in order to reward again a host of faithless agents and contractors to plunder the ignorant savage and rob him of the aid and beneficence of the Government; and, finally, let those who desire war that they may reap the rich profits which its large and necessary expenditures afford, ponder these facts and answer before God and a Christian nation whether they will, if they can, destroy the present policy of peace, justice, and prosperity, and restore the former system of cruelty, robbery, inhumanity, war, bloodshed, and crime.

CHARGES AGAINST GEN. GRANT.

I must refer to some of the unreasonable and frivolous charges against Gen. Grant, which, it seems to me, nothing but the mendacity of politics would allow honest men to iterate or reiterate.

One is that he is inattentive to the duties of his office and recreates too much at watering places. Those who know anything of the labors of a President of the United States understand well that he does no more of this than is necessary and proper. They understand also that no public business suffers by reason of any neglect of his. They ought to remember his long years of toil and hardship in the field which, followed by the exacting duties of his office, absolutely require all the time for recuperation he can take. They ought to remember that sound rain, and sleet, and snow, he spent part of one Winter in camp and trench, before Petersburg. For the pleasure of the American people, by the help of his good soldiers, captured 40,000 prisoners in the United States; had that season in the following Summer on the bloody field of Shiloh he recreated; and that next, after that, he was found riding away his time in surrounding Vicksburg and compelling the surrender of those forty-five thousand rebels, at last, he compelled them to hand down their colors and surrender to the flag of the Union some 30,000 more prisoners; that soon after that he was sent to the mountains of Chattanooga and Chickamauga, where he made the rebels again retreat; that soon after that he spent a little Summer in the Wilderness, and then a Winter of pleasure before Richmond, and, finally, in the next Spring, amid the pleasures of recreation, received at Appomattox the sword of Gen. Lee and the surrender of the entire army, the last organized rebel force against the Union. Such, Mr. President, are the facts, some pathetic and humorous in contrast to those who think now that every day of his life, during a hot Midsummer, after his necessary toil and labor, should be spent in the City of Washington.

But he receives gifts! How can he be an honest man, and faithfully administer the affairs of the nation? The injustice of this charge is as apparent as to justify the epithet of meanness and audacity. The President, without wealth, entered the loyal army, with the patriotic desire of aiding in the work of restoring the Union. He hazarded life and health during four long years of Summer and Winter, he rose in rank only as his merit and victories justified; from a subaltern he became a Lieutenant-General, and, after breaking up the last effective organization of rebel troops and receiving the sword of Gen. Lee, the grateful hearts of the American people unanimously turned to him as their defender and their great deliverer.

During his toilsome years of labor many private fortunes were made, and others largely augmented, while it must be acknowledged that perhaps opportunity for avarice had prompted him to accumulate a farthing. Our Government grants no titles of nobility, nor settles certain of the forts of ammunition upon her benefactors; but there is, notwithstanding, a sense of justice and generosity with the sovereign people. This prompted certain persons of large means, who had gathered and enjoyed the fruits of the President's great services and sacrifices, to offer him, voluntarily, before he was spoken of as President, such testimonials of their regard and esteem as should contribute to the moderate wants of himself and family. These offerings were the spontaneous outpourings of generous feelings, creditable to the donors and honorable to the nation. They were a fitting tribute of the sentiment of justice that characterizes the American people. They were intended not as compensation for what had been done, for that was beyond price, and they furnished evidence that God yet inspires man toward the performance of his most delicate duty. How envy, or party malice, or political frenzy can make these noble deeds into acts to be censured, and condemned passes the comprehension of all reasonable men.

DEATH OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

The Democratic Party must be regarded as dead. Its adoption of the Cincinnati platform and of the Cincinnati nominee is the announcement of its dissolution. The present canvass is its political requiem. Will its old members go like sheep to the shambles driven by the leaders? Was there no principle formerly holding them together? Is there nothing now to which they aspire except the loaves and fishes of office; and will the cohesive power of public plunder, under the patriotic watch-word of "Anything to beat Grant," induce all former Democrats to vote for Greeley? I shall be disappointed if it is not. I cannot and will not believe it until I see it.

The old Democratic Party did contain men within its ranks of earnest convictions, of sincere sentiments. They believed they were right. They deemed the war unnecessary. They denied the right of coercion. In the South they believed in the right of secession. They honestly doubted the expediency of emancipation, and were shocked at the idea of enfranchisement and civil rights. All this and much more was matter of faith and sentiment. All this is now renounced. It was swept away as Cincinnati and Baltimore; and they are asked to accept as their candidate one who has ever opposed them, and, opposing them, has denounced them with bitter reproaches, threatened them with confiscation of their estates and a division of the same among emigrants from the North.

Is it monstrously absurd that all these men—the rank and file—"Tray, Sweetheart and Blanche," shall at once begin to back for Mr. Greeley and go for the Cincinnati platform.

Gen. Grant is a Republican, but no has never been the enemy of the South or of her institutions. He was a War Democrat. His magnanimity toward the South in 1865-67 caused him to receive the reproaches of Radical Republicans, among them a distinguished Senator from Massachusetts.

Her was then accused of whitewashing the South. He was censured for the liberal terms granted to Gen. Pemberton when he surrendered Vicksburg. He was accused of too great liberality in the recent case of the surrender of Gen. Lee at Appomattox, and permitted his destitute and half-starved troops to be fed with our rations. He was thanked by Lee when he permitted the rebel troops to take home, for use on their farms, the horses which they individually owned; and when Gen. Lee was prosecuted, after surrendering upon the agreement that future good behavior should be his protection, Gen. Grant insisted, like a noble and courageous man, that Lee must be protected.

These facts are too fresh and too important to be forgotten. Justice has not fled to brutish beasts, nor have all men lost their reason. Time will awaken memory to memory. Will lead to reflection, and reflection will show candid and upright men, whose desire for office does not swallow up all other considerations, that Gen. Grant, for an honest Democrat, is a much more desirable candidate than Mr. Greeley. The old Democratic Party having expired, the members are not compelled to swallow the Cincinnati platform and the Tammany nomination also, but they are at liberty to rearrange their party relations and join such organization as, in their judgment, will best promote the public peace, prosperity, and welfare.

SENATOR POOL'S SPEECH.

After Secretary Delano has concluded by asking for three cheers for Grant and Wilson, which were given with great heartiness, Mr. Phillips introduced Senator Pool, who proceeded to make an able and exhaustive review of the record of the Republican Party, claiming for it the confidence of the nation as honest, patriotic and faithful. He dwelt particularly upon what it had done for North Carolina in abolishing the odious class distinctions such as the property qualifications required by the old Constitution for jurors, and all officers of State, from the highest to lowest. He referred to the charges of maladministration of local affairs, which have been made against the Republican Party, and showed their falsity. His speech was quite long, and was largely devoted to State matters.

THE TAMMANY AGENT AT WORK.

While Secretary Delano was speaking a fellow was engaged in handing about among the audience circulars signed by W. F. Wood, the notorious New-York Democrat, dismissed by Secretary Boutwell, and sent here by Essa Allen. This scoundrel, Wood, began by showing how the impudence had been properly met. He sent a letter to Secretary Delano asking to divide the time with him. The sublime impudence of this demand created some surprise, but a reply was sent him signed by J. C. L. Harris, Secretary of Republican Committee, saying that Mr. Delano's friends were sufficiently well advised of his character not to permit the Secretary to hold any communication with him. Wood printed these two letters and then proceeded to retush the

There were started [illegible] with a systematic attack upon the President and members of the Cabinet, but were found to be so carelessly dated that no member of Congress would meddle with them. It now appears that Wood has been sent here by the Greeley Committee to peddle them about, and that the campaign is to degenerate into mendacity and personal vilification. Enough to the extent Ethan Allen's instructions have not been developed. The Evening City charges that he has been sent here to arrange plans for stuffing the ballot-boxes and destroying the registration lists in the negro district.

ANOTHER MEETING.

A large meeting was held, this evening, in Metropolitan Hall, which was addressed by Gen. Baker, of Mississippi. He handled the fellow Wood without gloves, and made a forcible argument against the claims of the party which employs such instruments to confidence.

Secretary Delano left, this evening, for Fayetteville, where he speaks to-morrow. E. C.

Gov. Harriman Prevented from Speaking by Ku-klux Shouting for Greeley.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 20.—Gov. Harriman spoke here to night in the public square to about 800 people. He was frequently interrupted while speaking by cries of "Hooza for Greeley," and noises amounting to tumult, and the excitement becoming intense, he closed his speech abruptly.

As he left the stand the crowd surged rushed against him, nearly tripping him up. One young Greeleyite drew his pistol. The Greeleyites took possession of the stand and their second speaker spoke.

The impression made by Gov. Harriman is good.

Stirring Republican Meeting on the Upper Kennebec—The Spirit of '64 and '65 Thoroughly Aroused.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

PORTLAND, Me., July 20.—One of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings ever held in the Upper Kennebec was held in Skowhegan this evening. Coburn Hall, one of the largest in the State, was filled to listen to the speeches of Speaker Blaine and Congressman Frye, which were frequently and loudly applauded. All the enthusiasm of 1856 and 1860 is apparent in this section.

THE COLLEGE REGATTA.

The Greatest University Race Ever Held in the Country—The Fastest Time on Record—Amherst the Victor.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, July 20.—The course, as described yesterday, was from six buoys anchored in a straight line, fifty feet apart, from the east to the west shore, between two floats at Agawam Ferry, a little south of Springfield, three miles, straight away, in a southeasterly direction.

The several positions were lotted as follows: From the east side—No. 1, Amherst; No. 2, Middletown; No. 3, Yale; No. 4, Bowdoin; No. 5, Harvard; No. 6, Massachusetts Agricultural.

THE RACE.

Capt. Babcock, the Referee, called the six competing boats to the starting point, and gave them their instructions how to start, &c. At 11:30 Mr. Babcock made an attempt to give them a square send-off, but was compelled to recall them. At 11:35 he had them again in line, which, by the way, was almost an impossibility, and quickly gave them warning, and then started them by the word "Go." A very strong current and quite a fresh breeze helped them along pretty well, and it was evident that, even without extraordinary good rowing, good time must be the result with such accessories. Bowdoin got well to the front on the start at 46 strokes, the Agriculturists were slow to get away on 45, Harvard started steadily on 42, Yale on 43 strokes, Amherst at 45, and Williams 42.

Bowdoin led to the end of the first mile, but then Harvard gave them a hard tussle, and Amherst began to crowd them also, and the actual lead changed repeatedly, although at times almost imperceptibly. Yale and Amherst were two lengths astern. Yale crept up on Bowdoin on the end of the second mile and went before her bow, giving Harvard third position. The Agriculturists were fourth, Amherst fifth, and Williams bringing up the rear. When about half a mile from the end of the course the Amherstsmade a brilliant spurt and went to the front and kept the lead.

A GREAT FIRE.

Destruction of the Erie Repair-Shop in Jersey City—The Loss Estimated at One Million of Dollars—Twenty-six Locomotives Burnt—A Fireman Crushed in the Ruins.

Among the great wilderness of buildings connected with the Erie Railroad centre at Pavonia Ferry, Jersey City, the structure used as a repair-shop was one of the most extensive. At all times it has contained a large number of locomotives needing repairs, besides a considerable amount of valuable machinery, tools and repairing materials. At 6 P. M. yesterday the building was closed and the workmen departed, leaving everything as usual. About 7.30 the south-western corner of the building was observed to be on fire, and in a few minutes the flames had burst through the roof and were making rapid headway over all parts of the building. The firemen were promptly on hand, and soon half a dozen streams of water were vainly pouring into the burning mass. All efforts to stay the fire were useless. The building being but one-story high was wrapped in flames within an hour, the entire roof burning at the same time and sending upward a column of flame visible for miles. At 8½ o'clock a crashing sound near where the fire had originated, gave warning that the roof was going, and an instant after it fell in with a terrific crash. Showers of sparks were driven upward, and for a few minutes the attention of the crowd was turned to the neighboring houses, fears being entertained lest the sparks should have fallen on the roofs and begun new conflagrations. But fortunately the burning structure was comparatively isolated from dwellings for the sparks to have any effect. After the roof had come down the side-walls cayed in by sections, and soon nothing remained standing but the iron frames of the doors and windows. At this time the fire seemed as if devastating a plain, the flames from the fallen timbers reaching only a few feet from the ground, while it extended over a vast area. Long rows of locomotives were visible in the furnace, their huge smokestacks showing out clearly in the place of the flames, except where, stationed near the sides of the building, they had been crushed in or carried over with the falling walls—lying, as it were, helpless and looking but one touch of that power, which seemed almost natural to place them beyond danger. The firemen, finding that nothing could save any portion of the building or its contents, kept up a deadly stream until near midnight, when all the material being consumed, the flames subsided. Near the end the store-house facing on Hover-street, and standing two stories higher than the rear of the structure, gave way, the lumber, &c., which it had contained, having previously fallen.

The loss could not be definitely ascertained, but it was estimated at about one million, the locomotives alone being worth nearly half that amount. The property destroyed is said to be insured for nearly three-fourths of its value, chiefly in New-York companies. The building, which was completed early last Fall, contained carpenters' and blacksmiths' shops, and to these rumor attributed the fire. One account states that the fire were late extended in the blacksmith's shop, while other reports ascribe it to having begun in the carpenters' shop, in the vicinity of which it first broke out, but all agree that it was due either to carelessness or accident. REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

The market continues very quiet, and values continue firm. The Exchange was but thinly attended, and no real estate was sold at public auction.

James M. Miller adjourned the Supreme Court sale of the two lots of land, 44 by 100, situate on the east side of Avenue A, 38.8 feet south of Third-street, to Friday, July 26, by order of E. C. Beamish, Esq., referee.

A. J. Bleecker, Son & Co. also adjourned the Supreme Court sale of the premises known as Nos. 198 and 196 Elm-street, east side, 169.6 feet north of Broome-street, 40 by 39.2 by 40 by 38.10, to Wednesday, Aug. 7, by order of Philo T. Ruggles, Esq., referee.

William Kennelly, No. 4 Pine-street, recently sold a plot of four lots, each 25 by 99.11, situate on the north side of One Hundred and Thirtieth-street, 180 feet west of Fifth-avenue, for the sum of $95,000 cash. The property is to be used for church purposes.

L. Friedman, No. 112 Broadway, reports the sale of the plot of land situate on the north side of One Hundred and Fourteenth-street, between St. Nicholas and Seventh avenues, 50.5 feet front on Seventh-avenue, 69.8 feet on Avenue St. Nicholas, and 189 feet all the front, on One Hundred and Fourteenth-street, between the above avenues for the sum of $25,000.

The following legal sales are advertised to take place at the Exchange today, Thursday, July 26:

By James M. Miller, by order of the Court of Common Pleas, under the direction of F. V. R. Kennedy, Esq., referee, one lot on north side of Fifty-fifth-street, 475.8 feet west of Fifth-avenue, 19.4 by 100.5.

Also, one lot and buildings on the south side of Seventy-eighth-street, 155 feet west of Second-avenue, by order of Nathaniel Jarvis, Jr., referee.

By Muller, Wilkins & Co., by order of the Court of Common Pleas, W. Harvey Hart, Esq., referee, the two four-story double tenement houses and lots, 50 by 150, situate on the north side of Eleventh-street, 225 feet west of First-avenue.

BONDS OF "COOK COUNTY,"

STATE OF ILLINOIS.

Principal and Interest at Seven per Cent. per Annum, Payable in the City of New-York.

THIS COUNTY INCLUDES THE CITY OF CHICAGO AND OTHER IMPORTANT TOWNS.

These bonds are authorized by act of Legislature, approved Feb. 12, 1872, and the Constitution of the State of Illinois limits the indebtedness of the County of Cook to FIVE per cent. on the assessable value of the property in the said county.

State of Illinois, County of Cook, ss.: I, George W. Wheeler, Clerk of the County Court of Cook County, in the State aforesaid, do hereby certify that the assessed value of property in said County of Cook for the year 1871 was $48,541,128, which does not exceed one-fifth of the cash value of land property; and I further certify that the statement of the bonded debt of said county hereto attached, amounting to $2,000,000, is correct.

In witness whereof I have hereto set my hand and affixed the seal of said County Court, at my office in the City of Chicago, in said county, this 11th day of July, 1872.

(Signed) G. W. WHEELER, Clerk.

ABSOLUTE SECURITY

OVER 10 PER CENT. INCOME.

ARKANSAS STATE LOAN.

A LIMITED NUMBER OFFERED AT

70 Cents and Accrued Interest.

These Bonds were issued under act of the Legislature for the purpose of assisting the Arkansas Central Railway. In addition to the sections in the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, which provides as follows: "The credit of the State or counties shall never be loaned for any purpose without the consent of the people" and "The State cannot be sued" (which act was submitted to the people at the general election held in November, 1868, and unanimously ratified by them. The Legislature of the State has no power to make additional aid to railroads, or, generally, the debt of the State cannot be increased, except by amending the Constitution through a vote of the whole people.

As an additional security, these bonds are guaranteed by the Arkansas Central Railway by special indorsement, recorded as a mortgage in every county through which the line passes, being as a direct lien upon the property of the Company, its real estate, rolling stock and franchises.

It is also recorded that the "faith and credits of the State are solemnly and irrevocably pledged for the payment and redemption of the principal and interest of the said coupon bonds."

Every possible safeguard surrounds them to protect the holder from the danger of corruption and fraud.

Unlike ordinary railway bonds, these now offered are negotiable, like the New-York Stock Exchange, as may be observed from the daily stock quotations.

The bonds are of the denomination of $1,000 each, payable to bearer and therefore negotiable by mere delivery. The interest coupons attached to each bond are payable semi-annually at the office of the Union Trust Company, in New-York, by the Treasurer of the State, on the 1st day of October and April in each year, until the principal of the bonds is redeemed at par in 1899. TWENTY PER CENT. INVESTMENT.

THE AMERICAN BRIDGE COMPANY, OF CHICAGO, ILL.

L. B. BOOMER, of Chicago, President. (ORGANIZED AUG. 7, 1871.)

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL STOCK, $1,000,000

The whole amount of the authorized Capital Stock of said Company has been issued, the balance thereof will be issued to subscribers at par, payments for same to be made in four instalments of 25 per cent. each, viz.:

25 PER CENT. JULY 15, 1872.
25 PER CENT. AUG. 1, 1872.
25 PER CENT. SEPT. 1, 1872.
25 PER CENT. OCT. 1, 1872.

The Subscription Books are now open at the office of the undersigned, will be closed as soon as the new stock is fully subscribed. All persons subscribing should be good with interest at time of subscription.

The total amount of stock issued at this time is $414,700, and of this sum the Company charge a reserve surplus of $116,250 (?), and is now doing a flourishing business. One thousand men are constantly employed in their extensive works, and does now have on hand $12,250,000 of work for various railroads in the United States, some of which may be mentioned, viz:

CHICAGO, R. I. & PACIFIC.
CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN.
MICHIGAN CENTRAL.
MISSOURI PACIFIC.
ATLANTIC & PACIFIC, &c.

and the Company is now entered upon the amount of over $2,000,000, including some of the largest bridges ever built in this country, to accept of which, and further business, necessitates a larger working capital, as immense amounts of material have to be kept constantly on hand and the Company are constantly obliged to advance the money for the work, railroad and other bonds, which are perfectly good securities, but not always immediately marketable.

A fund of intrinsic (?) but great importance to those seeking security is the fact that the Company own thirty acres of land in Chicago, which adjoining real estate dealers say will be worth, in six years, at least $1,000,000, an amount equal to the whole proposed capital.

The career of the American Bridge Company, though brief, has already fully demonstrated the great value of its business. The Company has constructed since its organization, and up to the time of December, 1871, a total of 28,127 feet of bridge, 18 turning tables and 18 iron roofs, and business is now delivery of the Company, and the Company have now at their disposal all the necessary facilities for the construction of pneumatic piles unsurpassed by any Company in the country, and a capacity for the construction of at least 150 feet of bridge for every working day in the year.

The Iron Railroad and Highway Bridge at Lenavenworth, of three spans of 34 feet each, and the Union Pacific Bridge across the Missouri River, of eleven spans of 250 feet each, were constructed by the Company.

The net profit arising from this business, as shown by the books of the Company up to the 31st of March, last, gives the sum of $3,373,483 14, or at the rate of $3,24,0959 28 per annum, or over 20 per cent. upon the capital stock then outstanding. With the proposed new structures, machinery, &c., the Company will have much greater capacity, and the profits of the increased business will enable them to buy material for bridges, thereby making a saving of from $50,000 to $75,000 per year.

The Company can undoubtedly, on above basis, make a dividend of Twenty per Cent. upon the premium on the full amount of capital, $1,000,000, with a fair prospect of considerable increase.

The undersigned are prepared to give to those inquiring the fullest information and to be satisfied regarding the reliability of the Company's statements and the unquestioned integrity and ability of its officers.

We confidently commend to capitalists the above as an investment worthy their attention.

NOTICE TO TRAVELERS.
Families or gentlemen going to travel on the Continent of Europe, who can afford the extra cost of a courier, should never leave Paris without one. Their services are invaluable in relieving the traveler from multiplicity of cares and troubles respecting passports, examination and conveyance of baggage, in securing the best accommodation, in protecting the traveler from imposition and in facilitating and expediting, in which they are exposed in various parts of the Continent. Competent and trustworthy couriers and traveling servants may always be obtained by applying at the COURIER SOCIETY, No. 3 Rue d'Alger, near the Tuileries Garden, Paris.

THE CHILDREN'S FUND.

Impostors Endeavoring to Swindle the Public.

They Pretend to be Canvassers for the Times.

Caution to the Charitable—Condition of the Fund—The Work of Relief—Interesting Scenes and Reports.

We are credibly informed that some precious rascals are swindling charitably-disposed people in this City by pretending to be authorized agents for the TIMES Fund. By this nefarious means these swindlers are obtaining considerable money, which they, of course, appropriate to their own benefit. It must be understood that we have no agents for the collection of money, as there is no necessity for it, so people who desire to contribute to the Fund will please remember that their subscriptions should be sent to this office direct. As for the swindlers, we intend to keep a sharp lookout for them, and hope to have them arrested and properly punished. There are two or three well-known gentlemen in business down town who have exerted themselves in obtaining subscriptions for the Fund. Beyond these gentlemen we have no knowledge of any canvassers. We received yesterday the sum of $508 05, in thirty-eight contributions. The Fund now foots up $19,726 05, a remarkable exhibit for the three weeks since our appeal was first made.

Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, Jr., having offered his services, and those of the members of the Home of the Evangelists, for the distribution of the TIMES Fund to those needing aid in the upper portion of the City, we intend organizing a fourth district, under the supervision of Dr. Tyng, to be known as the "Up-town District." We have now the entire City under complete control.

Another Visit Among the Poor of the First Ward—Distressing Scenes Witnessed.

In company with Officer Slattery, of the Twenty-seventh Precinct, a TIMES reporter yesterday made a visit to a number of tenements in the First Ward. The amount of distress and suffering revealed there is far beyond conception, and must be seen to be believed. As the publication of names in former reports has been the means of giving unnecessary, though unintentional, pain to some of the parties relieved, the incidents of the cases seen yesterday are all that will be presented to the readers of the TIMES, the Superintendent of the district being informed of the residence of the parties requiring aid, so that they can be easily found when wanted. On the top floor of an old dilapidated tenement a little child was found who has been sick for nine weeks, and is now so thin and worn with disease that there seems little hope of recovery. The father works at any kind of labor he can find, but not being strong himself is unable to keep steadily at his work when he gets a job, and is consequently quite as often out of employment as in it. The mother has tried to assist in maintaining her little family, but another child lately fell sick of measles and the additional care has compelled her to give her washing up and devote her whole time to her sick children. The little one first spoken of was so feeble yesterday that the mother could not wash its hands and face, and its pitiful cry was so thin and sharp that it penetrated the heart as well as the ear of the visitor. The mother has no suitable bed for the child, but keeps it lying on a couple of chairs by the window, and at night stretches her own wearied form beside it, not to sleep but to watch the fluttering breath of the little sufferer; and her continuous watch of vigil and weeping is rapidly wasting her strength, so that if the child does not soon meet with a change the mother will herself be bed-ridden. In other apartments a mother was found with a fretful child in her arms and another older one lying on the bed sick with measles, and surrounded with the confined air that almost stifled the visitors, and the floor, chairs and table strewn with filth of every kind. The father is a "long-shoreman," and barely earns enough to keep the family in food, and pay the rent. On another floor in the rear of this same tenement was found another child suffering from brain-disease and slowly wasting away, its mother powerless to help or save it. In her despair she borrowed a little money of a kindly-disposed neighbor and carried the child to a physician, who gave her little hope of its recovery. Passing along the filthy street amid the clamor of dirty children and the rude jests of unbeashed women, another tenement was reached, where the inquiry for sick or destitute children was met with such amazed derision or lofty scorn that the visitors were about to proceed to some other field, when a woman with a sickly infant stopped the passage and forced them to go up-stairs. Complying with her request, several flights of rickety stairs were climbed, and when her room was reached she brought a little child from an inner room whose appearance was suitable in the extreme. Its eyes were so inflamed that the moment the light fell upon its face it began to moan in the most distressing manner, and when the mother replaced it in the dark bedroom its cries would have pierced the hardest heart. The mother in this case has been a widow some time and has three other children, none of whom are able to assist her in the support of the family. Previous to the illness of her children she tried to earn her living by washing. But the care of both has been such a burden on her that she can find no time to wash and iron and at the same time attend to her sick little ones as their care they require. With a month's rent due, her hands tied by her children's sickness, and no means of subsistence, this case appeals most strongly to the sympathies of those who have given so liberally of their bounty for the sick children. While the reporter could not promise clothing for the naked children or the payment of fifty cents' medicine bill, assurance has been supplied and the case duly reported, with all the others, to Mr. Chas. O'Conor, superintendent of the part of the City. A large number of other visits were made, but none of the children seen were subjects for medical treatment, although many of them sadly need nourishing food and proper air. In one tenement near the Battery, with the pure air blowing freshly all about it, the bedrooms are so poorly ventilated, and the stair-ways so ill-lighted, that the puny children stumble past each other in the darkness from sheer physical exhaustion, and the street fever by the agencies of the front and rear buildings are so filled with the pallid faces and damp, half-washed clothing that the odor drafted into the open windows is more like the air stations of the trenches on a battle-field than the pure air of the harbor that pleases but a stone's throw from this pestilential pile. Here also we found another family with a large family of children, only one of them being old enough to earn anything toward the support of the others, and several of them so delicate that the ordinary fare of the poor affords little nourishment to their frail bodies. If the few hours spent in this Ward yesterday are sufficient to enable a person to discover so vast an amount of distress and absolute want, the daily systematic visit of Mr. O'Conor's missionaries cannot fail to develop a prolific field for the distribution of those benefits the TIMES readers are so anxious to see scattered in every part of this great City.

The Sick in the Five Points and Vicinity.

Rev. Mr. Shultz makes the following report:

"Visited a German family; found one child prostrated with fever. Father dead; three in family. Ordered tea, milk, tea, sugar, &c., which cost $1 25. Physician in attendance. Found a poor family consisting of father, mother and six children. Father suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism. Purchased sixty-five cents' worth of groceries, and called a physician to attend him. Mrs. Y—— was deserted by her husband, and left destitute of everything, with two small children, one sick. Their wants were partly supplied, spent $1 for groceries for them. In West-street I found a widow having three children, two ailing; groceries were given them, which cost thirty-two cents. Found a poor mother with two little children stopping in Worth-street. Her husband and father is in prison. Bought some bread and milk for them. One of the children suffering from a partial sunstroke; twenty-five cents' worth of groceries given them.

Total amount of money which I have thus far spent from the TIMES Relief Fund on sick poor amounts to $4 38, on twenty-six families, representing fourteen men, forty-three women and ninety-eight children, or 185 individuals, being about four and three-seventh cents to a person. E. M. SHULTZ.

No. 155 WORTH-STREET, July 24, 1873.

Work of the Missionaries Yesterday—Searching for the Sick and Relieving Their Wants.

The visitations of the TIMES missionaries are developing daily new objects of misery, some of them of a very sad nature, and nearly all connected with children, whose sufferings, in consequence of the ill-fortunes of their parents, can better be imagined than described. Among those investigated by the TIMES representative yesterday are the following:

On the 2d of July, Mrs. ——, of No. 133 Elizabeth-street, in passing along the street, was accidentally shot, the ball lodging in her hip, inflicting a severe wound. For the past four weeks she has been confined to her bed, and her husband, who had to attend upon her, lost his employment. The two little children, aged three and a half years and two years, consequently suffered severely from the want of nourishment. A surgeon is in attendance on the wounded woman, and nourishing food for the children is supplied from the TIMES Relief Fund. It is understood that the man who fired the shot, although arrested at the time, has been released and allowed to remain at large.

In the underground basement of No. 59 Hubert-street, an old frame building, was found Mrs. ——, with five children, and the husband out of work. The elder children are boys who attend school, but during the vacation sell papers to assist their mother, who "takes in" washing, and thus contribute to keep the household. She pays for the use of one room, twelve feet square by seven feet high, $7 per month. Three of the children had been sick, but fortunately were recovering when the missionary called, and an order was therefore given for relief in the shape of nourishing food.

Mrs. ——, a widow, of No. 60 West Washington-place, supports her four young children by taking in washing. As the majority of her patrons are now out of town, she has been deprived of her usual means of subsistence. When visited by Mrs. Marsh, the Matron of the Ladies' Home, she and her youngest child were found sick with the Summer-complaint, and in very destitute circumstances. Relief was at once furnished, and the case of the sick child was referred to Dr. Crampton.

At No. 103 Hester-street was found a hard-working woman who supported her family of three by washing, &c. She had often been observed working through the day and half through the night to support her little ones, two of whom went on one of the TIMES picnics. During the past week her youngest child, an infant, was taken sick, and the case being reported, Dr. Crampton went to attend to it, nourishing food also being supplied for the three children.

During the visits of Rev. Mr. Briggs, (one of the City missionaries,) the case of Mrs. ——, a widow, with three children under four years of age, was found. The mother supported herself and family by washing. One of the children being taken down sick, the case was duly reported, and Dr. Crampton assigned to take charge of the child, while proper relief was supplied to the mother to assist her in her work.

At No. 212 Madison-street was found a girl, J. M., afflicted with typhoid fever. The family were destitute in consequence of the father being out of work, and great difficulty was experienced in paying the $20 rent for the third floor rear of the large tenement house in which they lived. Dr. Lang attended to the case of the sick child, and relief was supplied to the family.

The missionaries, while coming through Orchard-street, found on the fourth story of No. 22 the babe of Mrs. J—— sick. On inquiry it was ascertained that the father was a sailor and absent from home, the mother supporting herself and children by washing. Her rent is $10 per month. One of her children is now in St. Luke's Hospital, and the babe was placed under the care of Dr. Lang.

An educated man residing in the back basement of No. 49 Madison-street has tried for the past three years to get steady employment as a clerk, but invariably failed, and can only earn a little now and then by copying papers. He has four children, and when called upon yesterday said all he required in the way of help was work, so that he might keep his children from want. He speaks English and German, and is acquainted with the shipping and commission business, but would do anything that he is fitted for. When seen yesterday he said he had that morning pawned his last article of wearing apparel, but in all cases found that others had been engaged before he got there, and he had almost become disheartened.

Cherry-street has lately been terribly scourged with the measles and spotted fever, doubtless arising from the bad condition in which the streets had been kept. These children are the first victims. At No. 155 Cherry-street, where ten families reside, there were as many children sick at one time with the measles, and two had died. Dr. Lang visited the house yesterday, but found the survivors doing well. At No. 154 Cherry-street one child of Mrs. —— had been partially deprived of sight by the measles. As the father was a laborer, and they paid $12 per month rent, but little was left to purchase nourishing food, consequently Dr. Lang prescribed strengthening medicines, and an order was given for corn-starch and farina for the use of the child.

At No. 142 Cherry-street was found a sad case of the child of Mrs. M——, the wife of a sailor who is now absent at sea. The little girl was a short time ago afflicted with spotted fever, at the same time that her little brother aged fifteen months was stricken with the same disease. The baby died within twenty-four hours, and the little girl, although recovering, was left (it is supposed) blind for life. Mrs. M—— has another child, a son, too young to assist her in any way, and she has to pay $12 per month rent for two rooms. Dr. Lang examined the child's eyes, but was apprehensive that the sight was gone for ever. The little girl's case will be referred to the doctors at the Eye Infirmary, and if anything can be done to restore her sight, she will then receive every attention.

At No. 141 Cherry-street, a little girl, having suffered from spotted fever, was made deaf. She was also much reduced for want of strengthening food. The necessary articles were promptly supplied by the TIMES missionary.

The missionaries found at No. 137 Cherry-street an aged man suffering from paralysis and destitution. The representative of the TIMES took the proper measures to get him into a hospital, as but little could be done for him in the wretched basement where he resided.

The young daughter of Orinoco parents, named Ah Ma, residing at No. 47 Cherry-street, was found sick with fever, and the case referred to Dr. Lang. As her little sister, of this family, could be ascertained, except that they live in very poor apartments, and do not seem to have a multiplicity of this world's goods. The sick child will, however, be properly attended to until health is restored.

The child of ——, at No. 216 Third-street, was found to be very emaciated, and suffering from the early stages of consumption. The father is a watchmaker, and being unable to procure a physician, the case was referred to Dr. Crampton. Nourishing food was supplied for the mother, who did not appear well.

In a wretched, dark, damp back basement of No. 481 Washington-street, we found ——, with his wife and five children. The latter, a bright little girl of about three years, died a few months ago, and one of the children was also sick. How any person could live in such an underground habitation is almost a wonder, and yet there were people who had to pay $8 per month rent for the use of one room. Dr. Crampton was requested to attend to the case, and relief was supplied to the parents.

At No. 418 Greenwich-street was found a widow with a sick boy, aged eight years, and another child aged four. The mother seemed very anxious to work, but her little boy, who was being watched by a missionary called, Cuff of the TIMES, from the companion she was to pay $10 per month for the use of one room on the first floor. The case was referred to Dr. Thurman, and nourishing food for the sick child was supplied from the TIMES fund.

In the garret of No. 75 Sullivan-street, an old frame house, was found Mrs. ——, with three children, one of whom was sick. The husband, a coach-driver, has been idle for two months, and the wife has to support the family by washing. For the wretched apartments occupied by this family the monthly rent of $9 is paid, and could some of our dandyfoppers see the filthy condition of the interior of these premises, they would hardly believe it possible that human beings could occupy them. Yet it is but the sample of many visited by the missionaries of the TIMES every day in the week. The case was attended to.

Who is Responsible for Our Policy Toward the South?

From the Evening Post, July 24.

It seems to us that every scathing or eloquent word the Senator (Sumner) utters, in criticism of the imbecility, the tyranny, the ingratitude, or whatever you please to call the conduct of the Republicans in reference to the revolted States, falls with redoubled force upon the head of him who, a leading journalist of the time, reflecting public opinion and exercising a powerful influence in the councils of his party, not only did not reprimand and arrest the pernicious measures, but exerted all his energies in furthering them, and in denouncing those by whom they were opposed. When, particularly, the Senator upbraids the Republicans for not having made the conciliation of the beaten South its first duty, he forgets that the conciliatory tone adopted in Gen. Grant's early reports, and subsequently in President Johnson's various efforts, found no more bitter, determined and clamorous opponent than the gentleman whom he now sustains as a type and embodiment of a better spirit. Greeley carried his zeal so far, indeed, as to vituperate the Senator's own personal and political friends who refused to impeach Johnson, as base and purchased traitors, and to insist upon sacrificing the dignity of the Court for the sake of the mere "moral" effect to be produced by a vindictive and illegal judgment.

"Look over the legislation of Congress touching the late insurrectionary States," exclaims the orator, "study attentively the bayonet law, Ku-Klux law, as they now present themselves in retrospective view. The end that legislation was to reach was apparently good. Grave disorders had occurred in the South. Voters had been terrorized in the exercise of their rights. Innocent and inoffensive persons had been cruelly persecuted, oppressed, maltreated, killed by organized bands of marauders. The laws were ostensibly intended to succeed in the rights of citizens and to repress such disorders; but what was the character of those laws, what their effect and what the secret aim of some of the master-spirits who designed them? Not only did they, while professing the rights of some, break down the bulwarks of the citizens against arbitrary authority, and by disregarding all constitutional limits of power endanger the rights of all. Not only did they awaken in the breasts of many, however well disposed, the grave apprehension that a government or ruling party assumes as much would stop at nothing, but such measures served directly to strengthen a party, a party which, by their revolting system of plunder, were violently keeping alive the spirit of disorder which that legislation was to repress." Well, look at them; study their effects; describe them and their results in the darkest colors in which many or fast may array them; and then reflect that the authority of the United States was more instrumental in fixing them upon the statute-book than the newspaper whose editors is now endeavoring to reap the benefits of the reaction which a later and wiser thought has produced. Mr. Greeley was as much a partisan ardente in the whole series of acts denounced by Senator Schurz as any politician in Congress, and to demand that his confederates should be punished, while he is not merely allowed to escape, but is to be actually rewarded, through an improved condition of the public mind, strikes us as neither good law, good politics, nor good morals.

Mr. Schurz falls into no heavier error than that we have just exposed when he remarks—and makes it a ground for supporting Greeley—that the only redemption for Southern society is in the practical working of the principle of self-government. "It must have become clear to all of us," he says, "that the development of the new order of society there cannot be secured wholly by an extraneous pressure which would involve a change in the nature of our institutions, but must ultimately be left to the working of local self-government." We most fervently agree with the Senator in this sentiment; but will he inform us how the workings of local self-government are to be promoted under the rule of a Chief Magistrate whose profoundest political convictions and whole political life have run in the opposite direction? For nearly forty years Mr. Greeley has been a conspicuous writer and speaker, but during that long and busy period he has never uttered a single word in favor of local self-government. On the contrary, he has made himself the champion of the opposite school of doctrine. He has vacillated in many things, but he has never vacillated in his leading tendencies of thought; he has always been, and is now, a decided centralist; he has always sympathized with those statesmen who were prominent in the vindication of the extremest measures of governmental absolutism, both in the States and the nation; and he has always acted of choice with those parties which were distinguished for their devotion to the ultra Federal and Whig theories. Yet according to Senator Schurz, it is by elevating him to the highest and most influential post, in which his opinions will have the sanction of a supreme official position, and be backed by an almost unlimited power, that we are to be taught the value of local self-government, and that the nascent societies of the South are to be saved from the excessive and tyrannical action of the central authority, which we see so much a settled policy as an unavoidable result of the war. We have the highest respect for the sagacity and probity of the Senator's intellect, as he is very well aware; but when he comes to us with reasoning of this kind, he will excuse us for saying that his new-born zeal has run away with his judgment.

We do not believe, despite the admitted sincerity and ability of the Senator, that he will succeed in convincing the nation that the transient mistakes of the Republicans in their reconstruction policy, whatever they may have been, are to be corrected by one who was himself largely responsible from conviction for those mistakes; we do not believe that the principles of an enlightened political economy, in regard to taxation and the finances, are going to be helped forward by one who is noted for his fundamental and inveterate misconceptions of those principles; we do not believe that the true way of possessing power from the grass of the Governments, State and national, and restoring it to its primitive and rightful depositories, the people, is to be put in the very highest place of influence and trust, the most zealous and unflinching representative of the doctrine of centralization that our annals disclose, not excepting even Hamilton or Clay. We do not believe any of these things, and it is very hard for us to understand, with all the assurance of his speech, how the liberal and intelligent mind of the Missouri Senator should have come to any such conclusions.

Inquests at the Coroner's Office Yesterday.

Coroner Schirmer held an inquest on the body of Angelo Basini, an Italian, who died on Monday from the improper use of oil of vitriol. The poison was used as a wash for the child's mouth at the suggestion of a friend of the family, and the druggists from whom it was purchased neglected to label the bottle as poisonous. The jury found that "the child came to her death by convulsions, caused by the administration of oil of vitriol, prescribed by a man named Rossini, July 21, 1873, and we censure Dr. Wilson for selling oil of vitriol without labeling it as prescribed by law."

Deputy Coroner Hermann was instructed by the Coroner to arrest Rossini.

Evidence was taken in the case of Eliza Harris, who was run over and killed by a coach on the 17th inst., at the corner of Twenty-third-street and Eighth-avenue. The jury found a verdict exonerating the driver for negligence, and the Coroner directed his arrest.

An investigation was held yesterday by Coroner Schirmer to ascertain the facts attending the finding of a still-born child in a horse-trough, near the sugar-house, in Washington, near Canal-street. It was elicited that the child was that of Eliza Cassell; that her husband had kicked and otherwise ill-treated her, and that he had deposited the child in the place where it was found. The jury were unable to determine whether the birth was premature, accelerated by the violence of the husband, or the result of natural causes. Cassell was therefore discharged with a severe reprimand from the Coroner.

ERIE DEVELOPMENTS.

The New Board About to Sue Daniel Drew.

One Hundred Thousand Shares Issued—Sue Daniel Pack Above It—The New Officials—The Office to be Removed.

At the secret meeting of the Board of Directors of the Erie Road, held on Tuesday, a portion of whose proceedings was reported exclusively in the TIMES of yesterday, other business was also transacted of an important nature. The office of General Superintendent was abolished, and Gen. Dyer, the Vice-President, invested with its duties under the title of General Manager; he will hold this position as well as that of Vice-President. The salary of the President was reduced from $25,000 per year to $20,000. Gen. Dyer's salary was fixed at $15,000, and that of Mr. James E. Hodgins, the new Treasurer, at $10,000 per year. It was decided to remove the offices of the Company from the Grand Opera-house to their former location in West-street, and workmen were busily engaged yesterday in making the necessary repairs, which will occupy but a few weeks. The buildings are sadly dilapidated, but it is expected that $5,000 or $10,000 is the most will suffice for their complete renovation. The rent which is now paid by the Company for the Grand Opera-house is about $55,000, and a large amount will be saved yearly by the change. The offices in West-street are also much more convenient to the business portion of the community than where they are at present situated.

Besides the measures of reform which have been so rigidly commenced by the Company, others of still more importance are on foot, which if successful, will both snow up the past workings of the road, and also, bring a large amount of money into the coffers of the treasury. It will be remembered that in March, 1868, there was an immense issue of convertible bonds of the Erie Road, which were exchanged for common stock and put upon the market. The amount reached 100,000 shares. Daniel Drew was Treasurer of the Company at the time, was prime agent in the movement and did it to defeat Commodore Vanderbilt, who was laying plans to obtain possession of the road. The latter had bought up immense quantities of the stock and it seemed highly probable that he would succeed in ousting the Erie management and grasp the reins of power himself. Daniel was largely short of the stock and in addition to the change in the management which must have resulted had Commodore Vanderbilt succeeded in his plans, the former was in great danger of being financially "busted." Fisk, Gould and Drew held a conference, and the result was visible in the issue of the 100,000 shares which Drew used to cover his contracts, and which Vanderbilt was compelled to take in, in order to keep up the price and protect himself against immense pecuniary loss. The Commodore paid about $7,000,000 for the new issue, and immediately procured the services of Judge Barnard to aid him in catching the villains who had forced him to swallow such an expensive morsel. Orders of arrest were granted, but before they could be served, a general begirt of the "wanted" sneaked toward New-Jersey. The $7,000,000 in crisp greenbacks from the Commodore's purse also vanished Jersey ward, and there was perturbation in the New-York Central camp. The Erie offices were also transferred to New-Jersey, and Drew, with his millions, laughed at Vanderbilt with his stock. Daniel grew lonesome after a time, and negotiations with Mr. Vanderbilt followed, which resulted in the return of the fugitives to New-York.

The issue of the 100,000 shares was defended by the Erie Board upon the plea that it was necessary for the equipment of the road and other divers reasons.

There seems to be a mystery, however, as to the actual disposition of the money accruing from the sale of the stock, and to settle the question, the present Board are about to bring a suit against Mr. Daniel Drew for the 100,000 shares, which would sell at the present rates for about $5,000,000. The papers in the suit are being prepared, and the matter will be pushed to an issue as quickly as possible.

The writer visited Mr. Drew, at his office, in Witely & Nelson's, Exchange-place, yesterday afternoon, and accosted him concerning the matter. Mr. Drew said, in response to the query whether he knew that the Erie Company were about to sue him:

"Sue me? What can the Company sue me for? Why, I haven't been in that concern for four years! I finished up then as Treasurer, and squared up all the accounts before I left. I don't see why they want to sue me!"

Mr. Drew, they are about to sue you for 100,000 shares of stock which you issued, they claim, illegitimately.

A look of intelligence beamed across Daniel's countenance, and he said depressingly:

"Well, now! I don't see what they want to do it for. I credited the Company with the proceeds of the sales, and unless it had the money at the time it would have 'bust,' for, the fact is, the road was just 'dead broke.' It's queer that they should pitch upon me!"

Daniel seemed to feel it so keenly that the Company should pitch upon him as the one accountable for the 100,000 shares, and wore so lugubrious an aspect, that the writer departed and left him to meditate upon the anticipated legal squabbles and the memories of by-gone days.

CRICKET.

St. George vs. Manhattan—Victory of the Former—Base-Ball Notes.

The old rival St. George and Manhattan elevens met yesterday, in their first match for this season, on the Hoboken Grounds. The players were prompt in attendance, and an early start was made—the Manhattans going to the bat shortly after noon. Owing chiefly to the effective bowling of Mosran and Stubberfield, only 39 runs were secured, McDougal and Tyler topping the score with 8 and 6 respectively. The St. George then went in and secured 71, although two of their best batters, Cox and Stubberfield, went out for only 4. Gibbs, however, came to the rescue with a well-put together 43, including a fine drive for four, 3 threes and several twos, his batting reminding one of his old-time form. Eyre and Talbot also showed fine hitting, the bowling of Byron and Donaldson being hit rather freely. In the second innings the Manhattan had scored 47, with five out, when darkness put an end to the game, which, as usual in one-day contests, was declared decided on the first inning. In yesterday's match considerable good fielding was done on both sides, Stonford and Jackson excelling on the part of the Manhattans, while on the other side Brancker, Eyre, Bance and Talbot were chiefly distinguishable. The score was as follows:

FIRST INNING.

MANHATTAN.	Runs.	ST. GEORGE.	Runs.
Jackson, b. Mosran	3	Turnbull, c. Tyler, b. Stubberfield	3
Stonford, b. Stubberfield	0	Bowman, c. and b. Byron	1
Donaldson, c. Cammell, b. Stubberfield	0	Stubberfield, run out	0
McDougal, c. Robinson	8	Bance, c. Jackson, b. Byron	1
R. Mosran	0	Mosran, b. Donaldson	4
Byron, c. Stubberfield, b. Mosran	0	Cox, b. Byron	4
Kirsley, c. Brancker, b. Cammell	1	Gibbs, not out	43
Cammell, b. Byron	3	Brancker, c. Cammell, b. Byron	2
Foster, b. Stubberfield	1	Stubberfield, c. Jackson, b. Mosran	0
Oakley, c. Bance, b. Stubberfield	0	Talbot, b. Kirsley	7
Tyler, c. Brancker, b. Stubberfield	6	Eyre, c. Byron, b. Donaldson	9
Stubberfield, not out	0	Gordon, b. Byron	1
Byron, b. Donaldson	0	Byron	13
		Wilson	0
Total	39	Total	71

Umpires—Messrs. Wanton and Tilly.
Time of Play—Five hours.

The Club being twice was allowed a substitute in the field.

In the second inning the Manhattan's score was: Hoseford, 0; Bance, b. Stubberfield, 11; Jackson, b. Eyre, 11; Donaldson, c. Bance, b. Eyre, 1; McDougal, b. Stubberfield, 3; Byron, not out, 5; Kirsley, b. Stubberfield, 4; Cammell, not out, 8; Eyre, 5; total, 47.

NOTES.

The St. George and Staten Island elevens play at Camp Washington, Staten Island, to-morrow and Saturday, beginning each day at 2½ P. M.

The Gentlemen's elevens of Richmond Hill and Canoe in August, and efforts are now being made which will probably result in their visit to the Metropolis for games with the local eleven.

BASE-BALL NOTES.

Today, Boston vs. Baltimore, at Baltimore.

The Mutuals play the Boys, to-morrow, on Old Union Grounds, and the Mansfields at Middletown, on Saturday.

The Bostons play the Brooklyns, of Brooklyn, to-morrow, and the Athletics, at Philadelphia, on Saturday.

NEW-YORK AND SUBURBAN NEWS.

NEW-YORK.

Controller Green paid yesterday to the Department of Public Parks the sum of $50,000.

Alderman Plunkitt, in the Yorkville Police Court, yesterday, committed Walter Oakes on a charge of stealing $35 worth of goods from the store of Richard Finkes, No. 1,097 Second-avenue.

Herman Carlin, a sailor-boy on the Hart's Island vessel-ship, was discharged, yesterday, by Judge Pratt, on the ground that while he was convicted as Special Sessions by three magistrates, the commitment was signed by only one.

Mr. Joseph Stratus, of this City, yesterday received a letter from M. Pasine, leader of the Cornet Republicans Band, now in Chicago, to the effect that his Band will arrive here on the 9th, and sail for France in the City of Washington on the 20th of August.

Thomas Moran's splendid painting of the "Grand Cañon of the Yellowstone" is now on free exhibition at Goupil's. It will remain here but a few days, after which it will be taken to Washington and placed in the Capitol, Congress having appropriated $10,000 for its purchase.

James F. Callaghan, of No. 117 Washington-street, and Robert J. Gemble, were arrested, yesterday, by Deputy Marshals, on a charge of dealing in the liquor business without payment of the special tax. Commissioner Shields committed them for examination in default of $500 bail.

Augustus Willis, aged twenty-one years, employed in the O K Soap factory of James Pyle, No. 350 Washington-street, was arrested by Gen. Pesty, of the Fifth Precinct, yesterday, for collecting and appropriating to his own use moneys of his employers. He will be arraigned at the Tombs today.

Michael O'Brien and Michael Barry quarrelled yesterday on Third-avenue, when O'Brien inflicted several severe wounds on his antagonist with a razor, from the effects of which he is now in Bellevue Hospital. O'Brien was arrested and committed, in the Yorkville Police Court, to await the result of injuries.

A fire broke out at 112 last night in the top story of Messrs. Ch. Field, Haviland & Co.'s hardware-store, No. 52 Park-place, which, owing to the notion of Officer Joe. Russell, in promptly sounding one of the fire-alarms, was put out without much damage being done. The fire originated in some straw used for packing purposes.

Capt. Gunner, of the Nineteenth Precinct, yesterday, applied to Alderman Plunkitt, in the Yorkville Police Court, to issue orders prohibiting the Captains of barges landing at the pier on Blackwell's Island. He stated that these barges brought provisions and drink to prisoners, and afforded means of escape. The Alderman said he had no jurisdiction in the matter.

A number of unfortunates, arrested in the dens of John and Margaret Perry, No. 227 Water-street, and James and Mary Miller, No. 320 Water-street, were arraigned before Alderman Coman, at the Tombs, yesterday. Although the Fourth Ward Police continually arrest the Water-street unfortunates, who are always released on payment of a fine, they never long refrain from the flashy concert-saloons on Chatham-street, which are continually complained of by respectable citizens.

The United States Shipping Commissioners' Office for the Port of New-York, under the new law, is located at the new Seamen's Exchange, Nos. 187 and 189 Cherry-street. The office will open for business a sufficient number of days prior to the 4th of August to enable all concerned to clear at that time. It is said that many of the old shipping masters, whose occupation is to be entirely taken from them under the new law, are conspiring with sailor landlords to resist and retard its execution.

BROOKLYN.

David Splane, aged eight years, residing at No. 146 Cherry-street, was struck on the head yesterday by a dermick at the Court-house, inflicting fatal injuries.

Paul F. Finchs was yesterday held in $500 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury on a charge of selling liquor at No. 407 Henry-street without having paid the special tax.

James Walsh, Richard Walsh and Patrick Dowling, aged respectively seventeen, eighteen and twenty-two years, were arrested, yesterday, for robbing the money-drawer of Patrick Duzan's cigar-store, No. 103 Grand-street.

Mary Wallace, of No. 35 Meserole-street, E. D., was arrested yesterday for throwing an iron pot out of a third-story window, which, in the descent, struck Mary Topshoff, an infant in its mother's arms, on the head, inflicting fatal injuries.

STATEN ISLAND.

On Tuesday Officer Finn took possession of all the furniture in the Town Hall at Stapleton, under an attachment issued by Justice Kenner at suit of Daniel McTarney.

NEW-JERSEY.

A new Episcopal church (St. John's) will be consecrated this morning at 10½ o'clock, at Woodside, L. I. The services will be conducted by Bishop Odenheimer.

The late Hon. John Griffith, formerly a Judge of the Court of Sessions, was buried from the First Reformed Church, Jersey City, yesterday. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Holloway.

Mrs. Fox, while in a somnambulic state, walked out of an open second-story window, on Newark-avenue, Jersey City, last night. She awoke when she struck the ground. Her injuries are not dangerous.

The Mayor of Jersey City refuses to sign a warrant for the payment of the salary of one of the City Fire Commissioners because he says the Commissioner (Tilden) does not attend the meetings of the Board, and has not earned his salary.

The funeral of Col. Rafferty took place yesterday in Paterson. The remains previous to interment were conveyed to the new St. John's Cathedral, where high mass was celebrated, and were afterward deposited in the family burial vault at Sandy Hill.
